

BUSBEE FAMILY

WAKE CO, NC

The article below sent to RPU in a ltr 8 AUG 1990 from Linda Diann Clark of Hallsville, TX. It is taken from "Wake - Capital County of North Carolina" by Elizabeth Reid Murray Vol I pg 423-424

Auburn. "Late Busbee's."—The plantation and country store of the Busbee family of southeastern Wake was a community center known as Busbee's Store as early as 1818, when the county court, with permission from the General Assembly, designated it a polling place. Under the same name it also had by 1833 a post office in charge of Johnston Busbee, who probably handed out mail from his store on the road that was the stage route from Raleigh to New Bern. The post office was discontinued at the end of 1843, the year that the Busbee plantation of some 1,200 acres was divided into smaller tracts and sold at public auction. Thomas Loring became owner of the store tract, which also included the Busbee home, described at the time as "nearly new, large, commodious and comfortable, with all the necessary Out-houses," a large cotton gin house, a good orchard, and "an excellent Well of Water." Loring installed nearby resident James J. Ferrell as manager of the store, offering "dry goods, groceries, hardware, cutlery, &c." and other "new goods, at Auburn — late Busbee's." A few months later the post office was reestablished with Ferrell as postmaster.⁸⁷

Residents of the area, then called St. Mary's District, were especially active in promoting the proposed North Carolina Railroad in the late 1840s. They held frequent meetings at the store, its former owner and his kinsmen being among the leaders of the railroad movement. Others were neighbors William R. Poole and Parker Rand. The railroad materialized in the 1850s, and by the spring of 1854 track from east of Wake was being laid through Auburn. Among those furnishing rights-of-way for the road were land-owners in the Baucom, Busbee, Broughton, Whitley, Loring, Sturdivant, Ferrell, Rogers, and Poole families. Near the Poole home, an area around a short sidetrack later came to be known as Poole's Siding.⁸⁸

A partial description of the Auburn neighborhood in the 1850s is furnished in notices advertising the commercial, agricultural, and residence properties for sale. Loring described the tract as his farm, "formerly well known as the 'Busbee Place,' [containing] 400 acres of good tree land" and apple, peach, pear, plum, and cherry orchards; improvements including a cider press and cotton gin house; the store, "at which a very respectable trade is carried on" within a hundred yards of the new railroad; and the post office, at which mail arrived three times a week from Raleigh and from Wilmington, "via the Wilmington and Raleigh Road." Concerning the dwelling he maintained that there were "very few country houses superior to it in the county of Wake." Located in the midst of a grove of large oak and surrounded by kitchen, carriage house, stables, and "several houses for negro quarters," it was eminently suited, he suggested, for an investor who might make of it "a Boarding House for persons desirous of spending their summers in the country." Dr. Langdon C. Manly became the eventual purchaser.⁸⁹

The railroad gave the community new life. Churches and schools, both private and public, were established nearby. Both Springfield and Mt. Moriah are names associated with the area. But the community never became an incorporated town.⁹⁰

At this period the post-office was in an old wooden building occupying the site of Berwanger Bros. Clothing House. The postmaster was Geo. T. Cooke—the clerks, Chas. H. Belvin and the late Thos. Jenkins.

The president of the National Bank of Raleigh is Mr. Chas. H. Belvin. No one who knows Mr. Belvin and has watched his rapid rise from a clerk in the postoffice to the presidency of a bank, can be surprised. Possessed of naturally bright business capacity, his integrity of character, unassuming manner and affable disposition pushed him forward to his present popularity and business position. Mr. Belvin is generally regarded as one of the safest financiers in the State. He is and long has been a steward of the Edenton Street Methodist Church.

In the next building to the above mentioned firm is the merchant tailoring business of Mr. Hubert Belvin, whose push, energy and determination to master his vocation has won for him a patronage of the best class of customers, who desire stylish and perfect fitting clothing. He is a first-class expert cutter, and personally superintends all work turned out from his establishment.

Dear Linda;

I am so pleased I could be of help, I come up 'dry' so often. I feel I must correct one error; I stated the Busbees were a prominent family in 'Northern' Wake County, thirty lashes with a wet noodle, Swift Creek is in Southeastern Wake County.

The wills that you listed have me in a tizzy, along with several archivists. Normally all wills remained at County level after after the Revolution (the law was actually changed in 1763). Prior to that they were sent to the Secty. of State and included in his papers. The last will I found was 1790, with a few estate settlements into 1800 and I am betting, since the list you sent has the same reference number that these people may have been legatees under the same will. I shall press on - it might well clarify the relationships. North Carolina Wills, a Testators Index, Mitchell does not list Edmund nor is he in the Wake County wills, Thomas is (1815).

↳ [EDMOND
BUSBEE]

I am enclosing a page from Wake Capital County of North Carolina, Elizabeth Reid Murray on the Busbees. The Johnston referred to was Thomas' son and I believe, a nephew of Edmond. Johnston has just crossed my path on another project, having been declared guardian of some minor children of the Penney line.
