ALLEN = JOSEPH ^A ALLEN
HOLLEMAN, JR

All, here is more information on Phil's site. He has presented a comprehensive business plan! I like the financial strength he envisions and what he is trying to do captures my fondest dreams for perpetuating our collective histories and materials.

I would be quick to say that no one should feel intimidated by a contribution schedule. It is well understood that we all are in different parts of our lives and have varying demands on our finances.

Setting aside costs, is this something we should pursue. Please study and let me know your thoughts. Thanks in advance for your attention.

Glenn

Cousins Phil and Allen,

I have a second cousin in the Holleman tree, her name is Kelly Hancock Sigmond. Allen- you would connect her as Rosalyn's daughter. You might remember Rosalyn at the national Holleman convention in IOW County VA a couple of years ago. At any rate Kelly put together a written update of Aaron "Bud" Holleman's sub clan about 10 years ago. I was thinking if Kelly has the time, maybe she could take a lead role in helping us with Allied Families Holleman family enrollment.

Thanks,

Staley

Hi Allen and Staley---

Note that Teresa Churchill is a very productive Allied Families Cooperator---at present on the Nathan Upchurch, I Family of which she is a member. This is to alert you about her Holleman heritage and her offer to help.

Staley, I take note of the fact that in our recent chat you emphasized your Holleman heritage.

Along the way I hope more Holleman descendants will pitch in. Right now the key is to get the Holleman narrative on our website so as to have the family enrolled.

Success is around the corner.

Cheers~

Phil Upchurch, Founder, Allied Families.

I don't know how this particular W H Holleman fits into the Family scheme, but have located a number of potential considerations, and a couple of exceptions (but familiar ones to me).

W W Holleman is listed, brother of Wyatt, and father of Charlie Johnson Holleman, one of the many Apex area names.

W M Holleman is listed, as a Durham resident, born about 1900

The others, all W H (variations of Holleman) may fit into something useful, as they were born in North Carolina, but moved to Tennessee, Arkansas or Kentucky... one almost needs another family member to sort this one out. The whholleman and whholleman2 files are a listing and dates for deed activity in Wake County.

Maybe something here is useful, but I'm not really familiar with this particular Family beyond the scope of my recent venture with Joseph, Joel and Wyatt.

Further Exploring Holleman History in Old Virginia \(and North Carolina\) Part 13

by Glenn N. Holliman

I am happy to post another article by cousin Allen Holleman who continues to research and write of his ancestors, direct descendants of Christopher Holyman (1618-1691) who migrated from Bedford, Bedfordshire, England with his sister, Judith (b 1621), and made his home in Isle of Wight, Virginia. GNH

A Holleman Family leaves Virginia....

by descendant Allen Holleman, 4th great grandson of John Holleman (1766-??)

My previous article (May 3, 2014) was about JESSE HOLLEMAN, great-grandson of CHRISTOPHER

HOLLYMAN, and only briefly mentioned his nine sons and four daughters. While the daughters are important, the focus is on the boys as they carried the family name directly forward. We have very little to relate on four of them, and Glenn Holliman has given us so much knowledge on the second son Josiah, who with his children were a well regarded and successful family in Isle of Wight County, Virginia in colonial times, early America and even today. I will concentrate on the four sons who chose to migrate to North Carolina, leaving the legacy and property of 150 years and family behind. Why...?

JOHN HOLLEMAN, the eldest of Jesse and Charity Cofer

Holliman's sons was named for his grandfather and born 4 Feb 1766 in Newport Parish in western Isle of Wight County, VA on the family land by the Blackwater River. We don't know a lot about his early years but can surmise much just because he was the son of Jesse and much was expected of him being the firstborn.

He was schooled in the basics and could read and write and learned math as well. Most of his real-world education was from Jesse and seems to be mainly in farming, and 18th century land and farming economics. He doesn't seem to have taken up surveying, one of his father's professions. Yet we see he learned about land appraisal and trading. In 1796 he research has failed to identify John Holyman (1572 - 165...

appraised the estate of his uncle, James Cofer.

About 1783 at age 17, he married NANCY WOMBLE, the daughter of Thomas and Rebecca Womble. It is most likely that in early marriage they lived with Jesse and Charity. Son Axum was born in 1784 and Davis in 1785. The family farm was well looked after but getting rather crowded, with other siblings. John inherited land from his grandfather THOMAS COFER in 1784, and he and Nancy likely moved there and farmed that until tobacco drained the soils of nutrients.

The original Virginia patent of Christopher Hollyman's original 1020 acres had been well divided by 1800, and there was not a lot of available farmland nearby. The Holleman boys, being adventurous sorts, needed to make their fortunes and futures as Christopher had done in leaving England for Virginia. North Carolina had become a draw for many, with a lot of available land and an emerging "civilization", especially in Wake County near the new state capital, Raleigh.

All eight of John and Nancy's children were born in Virginia and moved to North Carolina with them. That would have been after 1802 when the youngest, Edwin was born. Axum, the eldest, bought farmland from Mark Cook in 1804 and sold another parcel in 1807 both in Chatham County, NC. If he moved south with his family that would place them at least that early. Axum was an independent sort and may have moved first and influenced the others.

I can't place John in Wake County solidly until witnessing an 1810 land sale, where his son, Jeremiah bought farmland from Richard Levens. Generally, witnesses to legal transactions, such as deeds and wills, were substantial citizens - landowners, so he and his sons were well established there already.

Below, a North Carolina county map with Wake County in blue. Chatham County is just to the west. Johnston County bordering Wake is the historic home of another set of Hollimans, Samuel and James Grantson in the 18th Century. GNH Between 1812 and 1848, John became quite a land trader as he is named on numerous deeds as buyer or seller. He also witnessed several deeds for others, and executor of several wills establishing that he was a respected and trusted citizen of the county.

John seems to have been a money lender also, and some loans did not go well as he had to take property in settlement of some debts. That may not have been all bad, but it must have been difficult to foreclose on friends and neighbors. We don't know how many of these there might have been as only the problem loans were recorded by the county. And we might think he wasn't particularly avaricious as he signed notes as security for others, promising to cover their debts. Again, only those that didn't go well were legally noted. Even though the debts were discharged by sale of property, it must have been a hassle to have to travel 25 miles to Raleigh - much of the day by horse, and then deal with the legal issues.

Below, pioneer John Holleman of the early 19th Century would scarce recognize the metropolis known as the Carolina Research Triangle. Several millions live in the multi-county region which abounds in numerous universities and high tech services.

A Remarriage and Legal Troubles...

John's wife, NANCY WOMBLE was on the 1840 census but died before 1844 when he marries another NANCY, nee UTLEY. We don't know whether she was a spinster at 50 or had been married to an Utley but suspect the former as the bondsman was Hinton Utley. John would have been quite a catch to support her in her later years and he certainly needed a wife to cook and keep house for him. But, as we shall see, it may not have been a match made in heaven.

The last land sale I have for John is an important issue, even after he passes away in August 1850, as you will see as the history of my 4th GGF comes to a close. He was selling off properties and transferring land to his son, Edwin.

Brummet

Proved August term 1850 by R.M. Brown and John Bennet

John died in August of 1850. Nancy, surely in a state of grief and confusion and inexperienced in legal matters, likely thinking she would be able to remain in the home and on the property she had shared with her husband and perhaps thinking she was to receive the $500 stated, gave agreement of the will, by receipts to Edwin, son and executor.

Then finding the ugly facts: that the interest only of $500 was not enough to live on and worse, she was not to remain in the house nor did she inherit any property. Beloved wife indeed? It was customary then for a widow to be granted a place to live for her life or widowhood - unless she remarried.

We can only speculate as to how and why the will was written this way. Was John so callus as to toss her out even after he was gone? Was she so difficult he just didn't care? Or did he just see her as a cook and housekeeper and no more? Was his mental state in his 80's such that he didn't realize how this would affect her? Or was he so influenced by his progeny - Edwin, in particular, as claimed? Or was this an inadvertent omission? We cannot know for sure but we can surmise, considering the very specific wording of the will. It was very direct.

After the realization that she had a problem, through a lawyer named Saunders, she filed suit against Edwin and the other heirs, in the Wake Court of Pleas and Quarter. Claiming that her husband had a personal property estate of "$8000 or some such large amount" (a LOT of money in 1850) and asking for 1/3 of all the real property he "seized and possessed" further that "through some improper influence, left her without a home".

Pleas and Quarter was more of an administrative court handling relatively minor cases and staffed by Justices of the Peace. And a panel of three JP's twice considered this case, in Nov. 1850 and in 1851, decided that she was not entitled to additional properties but that she should be supported and twice awarded a years supply of household supplies and foods paid for by the estate.

The lists of foods is informative in that it tells us what was normally available. Beef was not included although cattle were raised in North Carolina. Beef was more expensive, and chicken more common and cheaper.

Most was preserved by drying, smoking or salting. List of Nov. 1850: 2 barrels corn, 300 lbs. pork (most likely smoked or salted bacon or hams), 1 barrel flour, 20 lbs. coffee, 4 gallons molasses, 20 lbs. lard, pepper, spices and ginger, 1 bushel salt, 15 lbs. cotton, 5 lbs. wool, 10 lbs. butter, 2 gal. vinegar.

Again in 1851 the court awarded: 2 barrels corn, 200 lbs. bacon, 30 lbs. sugar, 25 lbs. coffee, 5 gallons molasses, 20 lbs. lard, 20 lbs. butter, 1 bushel salt, 4 gallons vinegar, pepper, spices and ginger, 15 bushels potatoes, 5 bushels Irish potatoes, a lot of vegetables. (I don't know if this meant a specified amount or grouping or just a whole bunch of vegetables.)

It is presumed that she went back to live with her Utley relatives, and we lose track of her. The other progeny went on to live their lives, and we have quite a lot of records on them

Next we'll examine the three other brothers of John who had moved to North Carolina....Allen Holleman, 2014

Exploring further Holleman History in Old Virginia, Part 12

by Glenn N. Holliman

Note in previous articles, I have written of Josiah Holleman and his sons, Joel and Wilson who lived in 19th Century Isle of Wight County, Virginia. In this posting, Allen Holleman of North Carolina writes of Jesse Holleman, the father and grandfather of the before noted Hollemans. Allen's lineage is profiled in our October 4, 2012 article in the Archives of this blog. Take a look at Allen's blue convertible! GNH

Jesse Holleman, a Man Among Men

by descendant Allen Holleman (photograph below)

Jesse Holleman (1735 ca - 1825) is a great grandson of Christopher Holyman (1618-1691), the patriarch of most of the Hollyman (various spellings) clans in America. Christopher, Sr. arrived in Jamestown in 1650, and fathered Christopher, Jr. who parented John Holleman, the father of Jesse Holleman of this article.

All lived in Isle of Wight County, VA and had extensive land holdings in this Tidewater area of southeast Virginia.

We don't know much about Jesse's early life other than he was born about 1735-37. His mother was named Elizabeth but we know less about her except that she was named as heir and executrix of John's will dated and applied in 1751 when John died.

Below a Google photograph of the Holleman Farm at Mill Swamp today. Approximately 100 acres remain of the original 1,020 acres Christopher Holyman, Sr. patented in 1684. The Mill Swamp Cemetery land and possibly the land for the Mill Swamp Baptist Church, adjacent to the Cemetery, were donated by the Holleman family. The Holleman House and remaining farm are located on the left center of this picture on Highway 621.

Jesse inherited 200 acres beside the Mill Swamp as a teenager, and it is safe to say he began farming the land as he grew into manhood. He was educated well enough to read and write as he signed his name, not using an 'X'. Also in his later professions of surveyor and land appraiser, many documents and other written works were necessary. Even later, as a Baptist minister he needed not only to read and quote the Bible but to deal with the records and documents required.

Jesse acquired other properties and expanded his farming, mainly tobacco which leeches the soils so badly that land could be used only for a few seasons. He, and later his sons, must have worked the farms themselves as census records show him having only one slave. Although the slave population grew rapidly in Virginia in the 1700s, Jesse probably could not afford bonded servants in his early years. Tobacco demands skill to raise, cure and transport, and he may have been able to hire some help among the numerous free blacks in Isle of Wight County.

What was Jesse like, what sort of man was he? Farming demands dedication and hard work so he would have been self-directed and even driven. By learning a new profession, he showed determination to succeed and proposer. He surely had high standards for himself and expected no less for his children.

And they did not disappoint. A son, Josiah, became a member of the House of Delegates and a long time commissioner of Isle of Wight County. A grandson, Joel Holleman, became a U.S. Congressman and Speaker of the House of Delegates.

The Holleman family was reasonably prosperous and prominent in the area among such neighbors as the Wombles, Gwaltneys, Burwells, Wrenns and Cofers. And in marrying Charity Cofer (m. ca 1766), Jesse did very well indeed. He was held in such regard that he was co-executor of her father's will along with her brother and was trusted to value the land and divide it according to the senior Thomas Cofer's wishes.

There are records of Jesse's father, John, being a land appraiser, and one wonders if John might also have been a surveyor. Jesse had probably learned much from John, even at a young age, as children grew up quite early in colonial times. Jesse became a highly-regarded surveyor, an exacting science even in that more "primitive" time. Land appraisal is more of an art, but requires trust in one whose judgement and experience can be relied upon for sale or inheritance purposes. There was little circulating money, so property and the cash crop tobacco were the basis for wealth.

Jesse and Charity had three daughters: Mary "Polly", Sarah and another whose name is lost to history. I have read that they had twelve sons but we can only identify seven. All the boys names started with 'J': John, Josiah, Jesse (Jr.), Jordan and Jonathan we know quite well and some about Jeremiah but nothing about Jeptha. He might have died at a young age - as possibly others?

And none named James. It was written by early genealogists that James Grantson Holliman (1750-1836) of North Carolina was a son of Jesse, but Joseph Parker, Maxine Wright, Jeanette Holiman Stewart and Glenn N. Holliman have demonstrated otherwise earlier at this blog site. Charity would have been only 10-12 years old if she had birthed James Grantson, and she never lived in North Carolina as did he.

Charity was in the 1810 census and died before 1816 when Jesse married a prominent widow, Frances Dews Stringfield, when he was about 70 years old.

And no, there were no more children, but Jesse took up another profession, that of minister of the oldest Baptist church in Virginia - Mill Swamp Baptist that is still a thriving congregation today. There was a previous congregation that met at Burleigh Plantation, but this group never had a building per se. MSBC grew from this first Virginia attempt at organized Baptist worship. When he was in his 80's, Jesse again served the church as minister. Below, Mill Swamp Baptist Church as it looks in the 21st Century.

And what might seem strange today.....Jesse was also a distiller of spirits. It was common practice to have a toddy before dinner, and Jesse, who evidently had no use for temperance, made apple brandy, his favorite. It probably helped him live longer and surely made the journey more enjoyable. My how the Baptists have changed!

Many researchers have stated that Jesse was a patriot in the American Revolution (true) - as a soldier in the army. That part is not accurate. He would have been about 40 and too old for field service - except maybe as a senior officer and the records would exist for that.

No, he had a large farm and family to look after as well as his other professions. As all able-bodied men were expected to serve in the local militia, Jesse might have served there, probably along with his teen-aged sons.

Alas, when the British officer, Banister "Bloody" Tarleton, burned the Isle of Wight courthouse, many of the militia records were lost along with many other documents. (This is why we have lost so much information on our antecedents.)

Jesse did something equally important as being a soldier. In 1779 he was appointed Surveyor of Roads for Isle of Wight county, building and maintaining roads used by the citizens, militia and army. Unfortunately the area roads were utilized by the British as well, who made excursions into the region burning, pillaging and thieving, before being driven back to their ships by the militia.

This service is the important basis for a number of DAR and SAR applications - including my own. Jesse Holleman was truly 'A Man Among Men'.

Jesse died in December of 1824, and his will was proved with an inventory on January 3, 1825. It has long been written that he was buried in the Mill Swamp Baptist church cemetery, but that land was not given until later. It is almost certain that Jesse was laid to rest in the existing cemetery on the Holleman farm, possibly with John, and Christophers Sr. and Jr. Wooden markers of the time did not last long, and Wilson's is the earliest carved in stone. - Allen Holleman of North Carolina (10)

I am grateful to Allen for this article, and encourage all who have an ancestral story to send it along so we may share it with others. GNH

HOLLOMAN - UPCHURCH INTERACTIONS - RPU 11 MAY 2014

Interactions Between Members of the Holleman and Upchurch Families of the Wake /Chatham Border in North Carolina as Researched by Robert Phillip Upchurch May 11, 2014.

I. Background---It has been my good fortune to interact with a fair number of individuals who descend from the early Holloman settlers of the Wake/Chatham border. Quite a few instances of interactions between the two families have been noted. The interchanges have now progressed to the point that it is in order to summarize some of the interactions. For the most part the initial interaction will be cited without going into detail as to follow-on activities such as ,for example, the production of descendants in the case of a marriage involving the two families. Ongoing cooperation is invited to develop more fully the facts involved in each case.

II. Specific Citations:

8. Staley Smith--- His GM was nee Blonza Holleman. Staley and I are cousins by virtue of our Mills heritage. However, he and I have several interests in common. One of these is that he is an early supporter of our new organization Upchurch And Allied Families Association, Inc. (website--- www.alliedfamilies.com. Under this banner it is likely Staley will become involved in enrolling his Mills and Holleman ancestors under the UAFA program. Of special significance is the fact that Staley and I are working behind the scenes to initiate a major project under UAFA. Details will be available if this initiative comes to fruition.

III. Recap---Any interested parties are invited to submit corrections or additions to this list and to explore ways of collaborating to further document the family relationships involved.

James Clovis Adams, who was called Clovis, was for more than 50 years a sawmill operator and lumber manufacturer in the Carolinas. He was associated in this business with his brothers, and from 1930 until his death in 1944 he and his brother C. V. Adams were engaged in the lumber business in Warren County, NC. △

The following obituary was published March 24, 1944 (probably in The Raleigh News & Observer) and there was also an obituary published the same day in the Warrenton Record.:

Vaughan.—James Clovis Adams, 71, sawmill operator and lumber manufacturer in the Carolinas for more than 50 years, last surviving son of the late Lt.-Col. James T. Adams of Holly Springs, died here Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock after a critical illness of four months. He and all of his four brothers and his father were well known as lumbermen in the Carolinas for many years.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Nannie Gibson Adams of Vaughan; three children, Leary W. Adams, Charlotte newspaperman, Mrs. Robert H. Williams of Cayce, S.C., and Mary Elizabeth Adams of Vaughan; three sisters, Mrs. Joe Massey of Apex; Mrs. Maggie Oldham of Holly Springs, and Mrs. Maude Holleman of Raleigh. △

Mr. Adams numbered his cousins and nephews by the hundreds, all among the Adams, Beckwith, Hunter, Olive, Burt, Holland, Horne, Norris, Holleman, Massey and Oldham families of Wake County and Central North Carolina.

Mr. Adams was the fourth of the nine children of the late Col. Adams, commander of the North Carolina Twenty-Sixth at Appomattox, and the late Lucy Ann Beckwith Adams, daughter of Green Beckwith, who before the Civil War had a 5,000-acre plantation between Holly Springs and New Hill.

Mr. Adams suffered a severe fall near his mill early last November and received internal injuries from which he never recovered. He had been in bed most of the time since mid-November and his condition became grave several weeks ago.

Funeral services will be held at the Holly Springs Baptist Church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.
