By RICK WARNER

Staff Writer

In Arkansas, state legislators have passed a law that prevents public schools from teaching it as a fact.

In New York, major textbook publishers are cutting out references to it in their science books.

In other states, it is the subject of lawsuits, newspaper headlines and Sunday morning sermons.

The controversy over evolution is back.

More than a half-century after the famous Scopes "Monkey Trial" and a lesser known evolution battle in North Carolina, the debate over the origin of man is raging again.

Throughout the country, fundamentalist preachers and ultraconservative politicians are joining forces to challenge Charles Darwin's theory that man evolved from a lower form of life.

Though the basic issues are the same, the current battle is taking a different form from the ones waged by anti-evolutionists in the 1920s. Rather than trying to ban the teaching of evolution as they did then, fundamentalists are asking that the biblical story of creation be taught along with evolution in the public schools.

So far, Arkansas is the only state that has passed a law requiring public schools to balance the teaching of evolution and "creation science."

However, similar "equal time" legislation has been proposed in 12 other states, reports the National Conference of State Legislatures in Denver. (North Carolina is not among the states where such legislation has been suggested but "equal time" proposals have been made in five other Southern states — Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina.) Creationists are also pressing their case with local school boards and other community officials.

The move to de-emphasize the teaching of evolution in public schools is being spearheaded by the Moral Majority, a fundamentalist organization led by Lynchburg, Va., preacher Jerry Falwell.

Falwell and his supporters claim that evolution is an unproven theory that contradicts the Bible and leads to a variety of social ills. They say it is unfair to portray evolution as the only explanation of man's origin, especially when it conflicts with a student's religious beliefs.

Scientists, however, believe that Darwin's theory is supported by an overwhelming amount of research and evidence. They say it would be intellectually dishonest to treat the biblical story of creation and evolution as equals in a science class.

The debate over evolution is nothing new, of course. In 1925, the trial of a high school biology teacher named John Scopes attracted international attention to the sleepy town of Dayton, Tenn. Scopes, who was represented by the legendary attorney Clarence Darrow, was convicted of violating a Tennessee law that prohibited the teaching of evolution — a decision that virtually eliminated the subject from some of the nation's classrooms for many years.

Less well known, but nearly as dramatic, was the evolution battle that took place during the same period in North Carolina.

Throughout the 1920s, a group of fundamentalists attempted to ban the teaching of evolution in the state's public schools. Confined at first to local churches, the movement eventually spread to the Baptist State Convention and the North Carolina Legislature, where it triggered one of the most memorable debates in state history.

The evolution drama in North Carolina had a large cast, including then-Gov. Cameron Morrison, University of North Carolina President Harry W. Chase and a young state legislator named Sam J. Ervin Jr. But undoubtedly the most prominent figure in the long-running morality play was the noted president of Wake Forest University — a former biology professor named William Louis Poteat.

Poteat, a Wake Forest graduate with an advanced degree from the University of Berlin, had taught evolution in his biology classes for years. A deeply religious man, he saw no conflict between Darwin's theory and his Baptist beliefs. One could teach that man evolved from a lower form of life, he said, and still believe that God was the ultimate creator.

Thomas Theodore Martin strongly disagreed. In 1920, the Mississippi evangelist launched an attack on Poteat and his teachings in the Western Recorder, a Baptist paper published in Kentucky. In a series of articles, Martin accused Poteat of belonging to a "fatal, Bible-warping, soul-destroying" conspiracy that was threatening the country.

Among the evils Martin attributed to evolution was World War I. Darwin's theory enforced the Germans' belief in the survival of the fittest, Martin said, and inspired their effort to conquer the world.

The publication of Martin's articles sparked a heated debate in North Carolina. The Biblical Recorder, the state Baptist paper, refused to reprint the stories and defended Poteat as a man of "unimpeachable Christian character." Most Baptist ministers in the state also rallied to the support of the Wake Forest president.

But the Recorder's stand did not stop some Baptists from denouncing Poteat. D.F. King, a prominent layman, called Poteat a "destructive" force and demanded that he publicly clarify his position on evolution. Other critics said Poteat should either retract his statements on evolution or resign.

Despite the pressure from fundamentalists, Poteat refused to reverse his stand. In a series of lectures at N.C. State College in 1921, he explained the similarity between the development of a single fertilized cell and the evolution of the human race.

His lectures, which were highly publicized, included some light-hearted pokes at his more dogmatic critics. Once, when discussing why acquired characteristics are not inherited, he observed that "wooden legs are not inherited, but wooden heads sometimes are."

In 1922, Poteat defended his beliefs in a series of articles published in the Biblical Recorder. In one essay, he lashed out at critics who claimed that evolutionists could not be good Christians. "It is not fair," he said of the criticism. "It is not Christian. It ought to stop."

The attacks continued, though. In the following months, the Biblical Recorder was filled with letters and columns dealing with the evolution controversy. Distressed by the situation, Recorder editor Livingston Johnson decided in May to ban further discussion of the subject in the paper.

Later in the year, evolution surfaced as the major issue at the Baptist State Convention in Winston-Salem. Despite attempts by Baptist leaders to cool the controversy, fundamentalists came to the convention with resolutions that condemned Poteat and called for his resignation.

On the second day of the meeting, however, Poteat delivered a moving speech on Christian faith that took the sting out of his opposition. With a Bible in hand, the beleaguered college president reaffirmed his belief in God as the ultimate authority and pleaded for understanding and unity in the church.

Men and monkeys: the battle goes on

Remembering a famous N.C. evolution battle

The speech captivated even his harshest critics. W.C. Meadows, a Wilkes County pastor who was bitterly opposed to Poteat's views on evolution, joined a crowd that rushed to the platform to shake his hand. A couple from High Point who had withdrawn a $2,500 donation to Wake Forest to protest the teaching of evolution renewed their pledge after hearing the speech. One of Poteat's critics even sponsored a resolution praising his administration at Wake Forest and authorizing the publication of his speech.

Two years later, the evolution issue resurfaced in Raleigh when the state Textbook Commission recommended a list of 700 books to the State Board of Education for use in the public schools.

Gov. Cameron Morrison, acting as chairman of the board, objected to two of the suggested biology books because of their references to evolution. "I don't want my daughter or anybody's daughter to have to study a book that prints pictures of a monkey and a man on the same page," he said. Despite reservations by some board members, the books were stricken from the list.

In 1925, the battleground shifted to the state Legislature.

In January of that year, Rep. David Scott Poole of Raeford introduced a bill in the House to prohibit the teaching of evolution in the public schools. Quickly, both sides began plotting strategy and lining up witnesses for what promised to be the biggest battle of the session.

When public hearings on the bill opened before the House Education Committee, the crowd was so large that the meeting had to be moved from a small room in the Agriculture Building to the House chamber. There, during a three-hour session, both sides argued their cases.

Speaking in favor of the bill, Poole told the audience that nothing less than "the religion of the Lord Jesus is on trial." Teaching evolution, he said, was akin to teaching that the Bible was a myth. Another speaker, Concord minister James R. Pentuff, charged that Darwin's theory was a "mere figment of imagination" that "should not be foisted upon schoolchildren as science."

With Poteat choosing to remain on the sidelines, the opposition was led by University of North Carolina President Harry W. Chase.

"I am not here to discuss evolution, but to speak in behalf of human liberty," Chase said. The Poole bill, he said, was a slap in the face to those who believed in personal and academic freedom. Chase concluded by saying, "If it be treason to oppose the bill offered in the name of tyranny over the mind for the purpose of abridging the liberty of one class of our people, I wish to stand here in the name of progress and make my protest."

At one point in the debate, supporters of the bill fired questions at two N.C. State College scientists who were testifying against the legislation. At what stage of development, one of them asked, had man "parted with his tail and acquired a conscience?"

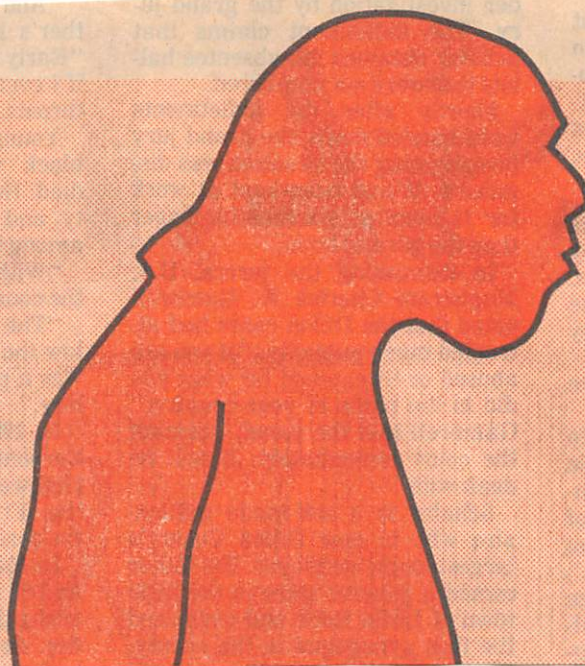

Legend has it that Poteat turned to a friend in the gallery and quipped: "Biologically he has never lost his tail and here is some evidence that he has never acquired a conscience."

At the end of the tense hearing, the committee deadlocked on the bill, 17-17. Committee chairman Henry Groves Connor Jr. then broke the tie by voting against the proposal, but supporters drafted a minority report and the bill was sent to the House.

Most of the major newspapers in the state condemned the bill as a violation of free speech and thought.

In The News and Observer, columnist Nell Battle Lewis labeled the anti-evolutionists as "great barnstormers in the world-famous morality play entitled 'Thou Shalt Not Think.'"

The Greensboro Daily News, a consistent critic of the fundamentalist movement, said the bill was inspired by politics and religious bigotry.

Among the major city dailies, only The Charlotte Observer favored the bill, chastising "high brow professors" who chose to "stick by the monkey" rather than "live by the Bible."

After canceling one session due to an unruly crowd, the House finally resumed debate on the legislation on Feb. 18.

Supporters of the bill, led by veteran legislator Zebulon V. Turlington of Iredell County, said it was needed to combat atheism and "foreign" influences at state schools — specifically at UNC. Rep. James C. Braswell, a physician from Nash County, said Chapel Hill was a haven for "descendants of New England mastodons temporarily in the South to teach that the Bible is a myth and Christ a Santa Claus."

Opponents like Rep. Sam J. Ervin Jr. of Burke County countered with some sarcasm of their own. The Poole bill, said the future U.S. senator, "serves no good purpose except to absolve monkeys of their responsibility for the human race."

Another legislator remarked that the bill made as much sense as a law that "would make it illegal for a tadpole to shed his tail within two miles of a public school."

The most critical speech, however, was delivered by Rep. Walter

Murphy, a highly respected legislator from Rowan County. Moments before the final vote on Feb. 19, the former UNC quarterback took the floor and delivered a stirring speech against the bill. A man's religion, he said, was "strictly a matter between him and his God" and should not be supervised by the state. "I am not so much interested in what I am evolved from," he said, "as in whither I am going."

Following Murphy's address, the House killed the Poole bill by a vote of 67 to 46. According to some observers, the speech was a decisive factor. To this day, Ervin calls it "the most magnificent speech I've ever heard."

The defeat of the Poole bill dealt a severe blow to the anti-evolution movement in North Carolina, but the "monkey business" lingered on for several years. At the 1925 Baptist State Convention in Charlotte, fundamentalists once again plotted to oust Poteat as president of Wake Forest and push through an anti-evolution resolution. But the effort fizzled when a large contingent of Wake Forest alumni showed up to support Poteat.

Fundamentalists also made several more attempts to get an anti-evolution bill through the General Assembly, but they were never successful.

Though more than 50 years have passed since the Poole bill was front-page news, Sam Ervin still remembers the debate clearly.

"It's almost impossible at the present time to understand the climate that prevailed in North Carolina in those days," he said in a telephone interview from his office in Morganton.

"A lot of very sincere people thought that if evolution was taught in the schools, it would result ... in more or less the destruction of religion. They were very sincere. They were just as sincere as the people who burned the martyrs at the stake for preaching false doctrines."

Historian Willard B. Gatewood Jr., the author of a book about the North Carolina evolution controversy, said the current arguments against evolution "bear a remarkable resemblance" to the ones used in the 1920s.

"The tactics have changed, but the rhetoric is very similar," Gatewood, a history professor at the University of Arkansas, said in a telephone interview. "There are still people who believe that evolution is the root of all evil."

Gatewood said evolution is likely to remain an emotional issue for a long time.

"It's the kind of thing that's going to arise whenever times are troubled," he said. "After all, it touches the very nerve center of our being — the nature of man."

Editorial

Among the numerous Wake county citizens who have declared themselves to be candidates for seats in the Lower House of the 1935 General Assembly is our old friend, J. Sherwood Upchurch. We don't vote in Wake and, consequently, cannot be accused of mixing up in "local" politics there; but, without the slightest reflection on any of the other aspirants, we must admit that we have a kindly feeling for J. Sherwood. He has many good points. Of course, like all other humans he has his frailties and his shortcomings. But there is one thing he will always do and that is stand by his convictions.

Mr. Upchurch is no Legislative novice. He served in the House in 1929 and 1931 and when the advocates of the "short ballot" were summoning their forces for the "last round-up" in these two sessions, he let it be known, in no uncertain terms, that he was not ready to give up popular government. Another strong point: He was for economy, but not at the expense of the little wage earner. Sherwood, all honor to him for it, as it gives him a knowledge of the human side of life, was reared poor. He is proud of it. Whatever success he has made in life has been due to his own efforts. And he has been successful, to a large degree. Old timers, who have never yet relinquished their love for the legitimate stage, recall very vividly how he used to bring to the old Academy of Music, up at Raleigh, the best talent of the times — Paul Gilmore, the Barrymores, the Mansfields, Mrs. Fiske, Maud Adams, and so on. He knew what to get and he got it. And here is another point which is widely remembered: He was always ready to permit the use of the old Academy of Music by organizations engaged in the task of presenting performances and raising money for worthy causes. If any charges were made for the use of the building for such events, we never heard of it. Ministers were given the use of it for special sermons; the Elks used it as the place where they held their annual "Lodge of Sorrow". School children assembled there and political issues of far-reaching importance were decided in front of the old curtain with Sir Walter Raleigh's visage depicted on it. The old Academy was an institution in its time. So was Sherwood Upchurch, and so he is today.

One of the chief assets of this genial son of Wake is his fondness for children. During the time he ran the Academy of Music he made it possible for many of them who, otherwise, would never have witnessed a theatrical performance, to enjoy the plays he presented. He has let more little ragged boys in to see circus performances than any other man in North Carolina.

As previously stated, Sherwood Upchurch did not arrive at maturity by way of Easy Street. His approach was over a far rougher route—a route that gave him a rugged spirit and developed within him a sense of human understanding and human needs. During his legislative experience, when he was a member from Wake he never lost his temper. During some of the most acrimonious fights that were precipitated in that session, he injected bits of his native humor and thereby poured oil on troubled waters.

And so this picturesque character again is asking the voters of Wake county to let him be one of their representatives in the 1935 General Assembly, to help laugh off the aftermath of the depression and plan for the future. Luck to him. He is an able man and a loyal North Carolinian, what's more, he is a friend.

Sherwood Upchurch of Raleigh said he was going to run for governor. On what platform, I asked. "First," he said, "I'd advocate automobile license plates at $1 each. Second, I'd advocate doing away with the gasoline tax. Third, I'd advocate doing away with the sales tax. Fourth, then I'd advocate a 25 percent increase in teachers' salaries."

We told him that certainly would get him a lot of votes, but "where would you get the money to run the various departments of the government?"

He waved his hand airily. "I'm not interested in that at all," he answered. "I'm merely going to give the people what they want and let them worry about the rest of it."

That devil Darwin

The learned Russell Capps, Republican state representative from Wake County, has discovered the theory of evolution. He's discovered it — gasp — in the public schools, and he means to see to it, through proposed legislation, that teachers be required to teach evolution as unproven theory, not hard science. That this goes against scientific evidence matters not to him. Nor does he acknowledge that many mainstream church-goers find evolution entirely compatible with religious belief.

But maybe this is just the first step. What's next? Shall medical schools be required to employ leeches instead of the scalpel? How about taking the globes out of classrooms and replacing them with nice, realistic, flat maps? And what we really need is the abolition of the internal combustion engine, and a return to the horse and buggy.

This seems like a lot of trouble to go to just because Capps is distressed by a theory that humans may be descended from apes, etc. Of course, if the apes could get a look at what goes on in the General Assembly some days, they might not be too crazy about that theory, either.

It would appear that an editorial (not provided by Jim) preceded the above article and was dated 14 MAR 1997 (Under the same - article = "Bill takes aim at evolution")

EVOLUTION, CREATIONISM AND THE N.C. LEGISLATURE

Is Darwin's theory 'true science'?

BY DENIS DUBAY

CARY

T rue or false? The theory of evolution is a proven fact. Hint, this is a trick question.

Just as House Bill 511, introduced last week by state Rep. Russell Capps, is a trick bill.

"An Act to Amend the Public School Laws to Ensure That Evolution Is Not Taught as Fact in North Carolina Public Schools" is not what it appears, and its preamble full of "Whereas" statements gives us a hint.

"Whereas the teaching of evolution as fact, when it cannot be scientifically proven, requires students to accept the teaching by faith..."

Let's answer the trick question first. The trick of course is that the statement is both true AND false. The theory of evolution by natural selection is as close to being scientifically proven as is any major theory in science, including the theory of gravity or the atomic theory, and faith has nothing to do with it. It's a matter of evidence built up during more than a century of observations and experiments.

However, no scientific theory is ever "proven," because some new discovery may cause it to be revised or, in the case of a new theory, even abandoned. When a theory does survive many years of experimental tests, it acquires the status of being well and widely accepted. Some may even refer to it as a proven fact, though what they mean is that the accumulated evidence leaves virtually no doubt about the accuracy of the theory's major tenets. Such is the case for evolution as it is for the atom and gravity.

"Whereas the theory of evolution is a belief and not true science..."

If the theory of evolution by natural selection is not true science, none of our science is true. Evolution is the foundation of biology and medicine, cornerstone to understanding the structural and ecological relationships among the many organisms we depend upon for supporting life on earth. To suggest evolution is not true science is to grossly mislead.

Mislead is exactly what this bill attempts to do. When the U.S. Supreme Court in 1987 struck down an Arkansas state law favoring the teaching of "scientific creationism" alongside evolution, Christian fundamentalists needed a new strategy. They looked to Justice Antonin Scalia's dissenting opinion in the Arkansas case.

Scalia suggested that creationists try presenting scientific evidence against evolution, since they could no longer present non-scientific evidence for the story of Genesis.

So creationists changed their wrapping paper. House Bill 511 doesn't mention scientific creationism or Genesis. It simply states that "Students shall be taught true science and not belief. The State Board of Education and local boards of education shall ensure that students in North Carolina public schools are not taught evolution as proven fact."

The bill's trick is its implication that since evolution is not proven fact, scientifically valid alternative theories must exist. Supporters of scientific creationism await the opportunity to introduce "evidence" refuting evolution and thus supporting their particular interpretation of the Bible's Old Testament.

Creationists claim the world was created about 10,000 years ago in just seven days when every kind of animal and plant that now exists first appeared. They've adopted scientific-sounding titles like the "abrupt appearance theory" or "intelligent design theory," both brought forward in other states by creationists claiming that living things appeared suddenly and fully formed and could not have evolved.

Although the evidence does not support these alternative ideas, it takes time and effort to marshal evidence and rid a school curriculum of deception.

You bet

In the meantime, students would be asked to set aside the findings of modern biology and geology assembled by thousands of scientists working around the world. This evidence finds that living things have existed on earth for billions of years, that they have changed over time, and that natural selection is a reasonable and testable mechanism for explaining how living things have evolved from simple forms in the distant past to a mix of simple and complex forms today.

Similar bills in Georgia, Ohio and Tennessee were eventually defeated in 1996. But the debate about them scared many teachers into downplaying their coverage of evolution and gave rise to related initiatives in many local school systems. So could this bill, whether it passes or not, become one more obstacle to strong science education in North Carolina.

Capps and his co-sponsors of House Bill 511, along with the House Education Committee need to think carefully about what they do next. They have the power to mislead many students about science, evolution and religion, and that's not right. Maybe reason can yet prevail and this mistake of a bill can be quickly removed.

Such a correction would be wise and could begin a needed reversal of the recent trend de-emphasizing science education in North Carolina.

Denis DuBay has a Ph.D. in biology and lives in Cary.

POINT OF VIEW

With Evolution's gaps, let Creationism join the debate

There is such a wall of fear, ignorance and bias surrounding the Evolution vs. Creationism debate. Evolution carries years of scientific research for its theory. Creationism has some hard science to back it up, but it is drowned out by sneers, jeers and fears.

Evolution has ruled supreme for a century and a half. May we now present just two (of many) hard scientific facts that support Creationism and undermine evolution? No Bible stories, just hard science.

First Scientific Fact: The Cambrian Explosion. In the fossil record there is a period called the Cambrian Era. For some inexplicable reason, the number of living species suddenly increased very dramatically — apparently without evolving from prior species. This scientific mystery in the fossil record questions the Darwinian model and points towards the Creation model.

Second Scientific Fact: Out-of-sequence fossil layers. As fossils are deposited in layers, the oldest go on the bottom and the younger go on top. Hundreds of thousands or millions of years could separate the differing layers.

However, unexpected examples have been found where "older" fossil layers have been found on top of "younger" ones. This out-of-sequence mix-up disrupts the evolutionary model. It is a great mystery to scientists, but it suggests a Creation model.

There are also examples from the scientific disciplines of astronomy, physics, geology, microbiology, paleontology (fossils), statistics and others. But, unfortunately, true science and debate get drowned in a sea of derision and fear. It's time for open science and debate on this issue.

In the realm of scientific debate, may the best idea win. It's survival of the fittest idea.

Keep it in church

State Rep. J. Russell Capps states publicly that he would like to see Creationism taught alongside evolution.

Creationism is religion, not science. And it has no place in the legislature or in the schoolhouse. Creationism is a matter of faith and belongs in our churches, not in our schools and universities.

The members of my church have their own views on the origins of mankind and I'll be damned before J. Russell Capps shoves his religious beliefs down my child's throat under the guise of science. J. Russell needs to quit wasting our tax dollars debating his religious beliefs with the rest of the legislature. There are many other more important issues facing us.

JOHN MCLENDON

It is written

In your editorial "That devil Darwin" you paint state Rep. Russell Capps as a fool for his desire to have evolution taught as a theory. You state that this would "go against scientific evidence." Yet you offer no evidence.

Put me down as a fool with Mr. Capps. I do not believe that I descended from a monkey! I would challenge you to show me the missing link. The reason it is referred to as a missing link is because it is still missing. Am I to believe that all the monkeys and apes on the planet now are gradually going to turn into humans? How about the monkeys and apes that lived on the planet 3,000 years ago? Shouldn't their descendants now be turning into humans? Perhaps even talking? Is this not the wisdom of the world?

Let me offer some wisdom from God's Word, the Bible. First Corinthians 1:19-25 states, "For it is written: I will destroy the wisdom of the wise. . . Where is the wise man? Where is the scholar? . . . Has not God made foolish the wisdom of the world? . . . For the foolishness of God is wiser than man's wisdom. . . ."

Put me down as a fool with Mr. Capps and God!

Hold up that bill

So 22 representatives in the state legislature are sponsoring a bill to require public schools to teach that evolution is an unproven theory. Seems to me that they don't live in the Bible Belt. They haven't graduated yet from Bible Suspending.

Harming our schools

Through chance, heritage and a modest amount of thoughtfulness, I am a Christian and a Republican. It appears that both Christians and Republicans are allowing themselves to grow too closely together; or perhaps it is religion and politics that are coming together. In any event, I believe it to be one of the problems keeping our public school system near the bottom of the heap.

Regarding state Rep. Russell Capps, I recall a quote, I believe from Albert Einstein: "One who finds conflict between science and religion is either ignorant of science or immature in religion."

Sudden life

In response to your March 14 Under the Dome item "Bill takes aim at evolution," it is apparent to me and many other "thinking" Americans (many good scientists) that you are as misinformed as most of the educators in our nation regarding the scientific nature of evolution.

Part of the problem lies in the definition of "evolution." Horizontal variation or "evolution" (variation of species within the "kind" boundary) takes place to be sure, but there is no compelling evidence of any kind, from the fossil or living record, that would lead the unbiased thinker to conclude that vertical evolution (kinds to new kinds, i.e., cats to dogs, etc.) has ever taken place.

To the contrary, all the reliable scientific evidence (fossil record) points to the sudden appearance of complex life, with sharp boundaries (in the living and fossil record) between kinds. It seems to me, no one need fear a balanced approach to the teaching of "life origins" in our public schools.

LARRY JORGENSEN

Unbelievable evolution

Although I have subscribed to The N&O, as did my father before me, for more than 40 years, your March 17 editorial "That devil Darwin" arouses in me the desire to cancel my subscription. I refrain from doing so simply because I want to know who has died.

I applaud state Rep. Russell Capps for the stand he has taken on the misguided teaching of the evolution of man as fact rather than theory, despite the easily predictable cheap shots ("leeches, . . . flat maps, . . . horses and buggies") which he most certainly knew would be taken at him by the likes of your editors.

Yes, some mainstream churchgoers find evolution "compatible with religious belief." Many also find lifestyles which contravene Christ's Sermon on the Mount equally compatible. Despite their beliefs and lifestyles, however, Christ's teachings remain inviolate, and the evolution of man remains but a theory.

I still await an evolutionist's explanation as to how a blob of protoplasm, or even a developed sightless mammal, which by definition cannot know that light waves, colors and shapes exist to be perceived, can have the requisite imagination, intellect and ability to develop an eye, in all its complexity (diaphragm, lens, and retina with both rods and cones, all functioning perfectly together) for the purpose of perceiving what the blob does not even know exists. Such a belief requires a leap of faith greater than belief in Creation.

Capps is right. If evolution is taught, then Creation should be taught, in the public schools.

Just Odds and Ends

To those who have known Sherwood Upchurch for the last ten years and more, there was no cause for surprise when a Federal grand jury charged him with conspiracy and smuggling liquor by wholesale into the State to Raleigh for supplying blind tigers. Nor was there reason for surprise when he submitted to a fine of $1,000 and bond of $2,000 for eighteen months good behavior. He is the type of man who might be expected to be mixed up in such affairs. Yet he has been one of the political bosses of the State's capital city, for many years a member of the board of aldermen under the old aldermanic regime, from the old fourth ward—the home ward of Secretary Daniels and the present editor of the Secretary's paper. Upchurch used to carry that ward in his vest pocket, if any ward politician ever actually did just that. In many a bitter fight, for which the Capital City has become famous, Upchurch was one of the warriors—one of the captains—sometimes a colonel if not a major or a general. Everybody knew him—new the worst and the best—and yet he was powerful—was hard to beat. He was always a factor to be considered. He wouldn't down. If he was killed, he was like the proverbial cat of nine lives, he would "come back." Perhaps one of the secrets of his power was that his enemies did not fight him consistently. When he deemed it best for his cause—for he was as astute and shrewd as the best of them—he would turn up in the camp of the "pure in heart," and because of his following they would receive him with open arms. This might help them to win a particular fight, but when it was over his own arm had been strengthened probably for the next attack upon him and his cohorts. At least this is the way it has appeared to an "innocent by-stander," who may or may not have it doped out wrong.

COL. GASTON GOSSIPS

—BY JAS W ATKINS—

PICTURESQUE FIGURE

In the hectic Smith-Hoover campaign of 1928 Col. Gaston spent a day in Raleigh. It was a big day for Al Smith was there and spoke to a vast crowd in the old municipal auditorium. Later burned along, we believe, with the old Yarrowburg Hotel, then political capital of the state as the Sir Walter is today.

That was the day we first met Sherwood Upchurch and heard much about his colorful career as political leader, baseball enthusiast, actor and general all-round popular figure.

Sherwood died the other day in Raleigh at the age of 79. In late years he had not figured in the public prints as he once did. As an politician he had passed out of the picture very largely. Hence many of the younger generation did not know of him.

In his column "Among Us Tar Heels" Tom Bost writes in Tuesday's Greensboro News, recalling some interesting facts about this many-hued character. Tom says:

RALEIGH.—J. Sherwood Upchurch, whose illness was first narrated in these columns and in such a way as to make the readers thereof fearful that he never would come back, was buried from the Church of the Good Shepherd Monday. He died Saturday afternoon a few months short of 79 years of age.

He was one of those men whose versatility required little of the schools, a limitation which he recognized but did not lament. He stood in awe of no learning and when he was called upon to write or speak, he was more picturesque than most of his better schooled contemporaries. Sometimes when a political situation called for novelty he contributed sprightly verse to the literature. He was a born showman and picked up valuable equipment for his life from the profession of histrionics. He ran show houses and traveled with circuses. He knew the big boys in baseball and boxing, and he brought to his country on his stage Jim Jeffries, Jim Corbett, two of the greatest champions boxing ever had. But he brought also the great actors and musicians who found in him a natural who gave the stage life.

In all the reams written about him and his capacities, few if any ever thought to mention him as a member of the Good Shepherd choir. He had a tremendous bass voice which he used in masterly with amateur theatricals, and on Sundays in his Episcopal church. As nobody ever talked to him about the incident called death, his favorite hymns probably were never learned. He would not have had melancholy music.

For all his many sides, old friends remember him best on the baseball diamond. He never played ball, but he was the perfect umpire. Some years there was a Greensboro Daily News story on Wil' Wynne, Raleigh radio genius, who had been a famous pitcher in the days of Amos Rusie, Jovett Meekins, Joe Corbett, and "Mystifying" Kennedy. The Raleigh pitcher who defied all the rules governing the warm-up and rest by pitching eight games a week often pitched with Upchurch behind him. One man did all the deciding those days. It was the opinion of Mr. Wynne 50 years ago as it is now that Sherwood Upchurch was the best umpire ever seen in this country. The big leagues were going to sign him through the offices of a great personal friend. Before everybody signed the friend was dead.

He was a member of the longest legislative session on record, over which Willis Smith, candidate for the United States Senate, presided as speaker, and in that morbid time of shrinking revenues, defunct banks, and perilous unemployment, he was a valuable wisecracker who had gone through previous panics and depressions and come out both alive and happy. He helped many Raleigh men to get established in their political careers. For many years he was one of the feudists in the Bailey-Daniel-Jones 20 years war. But politics has a way of righting things, and while it never brought the Jones and Daniels families perfect peace as between each other, it did finally get Senator Bailey and the Jones warriors to sign a peace and in that covenant they all lived and died.

There were unusual men in that group. There was the famous editor of The Raleigh News and Observer, Josephus Daniels. There was the gallant Confederate soldier, Armistead Jones, noted lawyer, and there was his boy William Branch Jones, better known as Buck. He and Editor Daniels battled it out on a street car in the 1900's, and with fists. There was Bailey, brilliant editor of The Biblical Recorder and later learned lawyer, member of the Simmons organization, then its destroyer in the fight of 1930. And finally there was the irreplaceable Sherwood Upchurch. The world is in too much of a hurry to make more like him.

Beside which follows substantiate that. The Sion part undoubtedly came from his grandfather Sion U XID-1255. XID-11814 may have been originally called "SION" but as an adult the name SIHON was clearly documented. The John part became vestigial and he was known as "Si" or "SY".

- ⑦ RPU Note 11 APR 2015

It is clear that this marriage is for the person we previously knew as Sean U, 5/6 Wesley U of the Richard U, III / Bushner U Subdors - Sean U Line. So the question arose was the Groom's name incorrectly entered or was he Sean John U or John Sean U - to be resolved

This 1900 census raises another question which is who was the Upchurch parent of the GS John S. U b NOV 1893

- ⑨ See Notes of RPU Call 27 APR 1988 to Mary Elizabeth U. Mary Elizabeth U barely remembers her GF John Dwyer. She says the story passed down about his death or related to fish differs from what she was told. She reports that John Dwyer was injured when a mule stepped on his hand. He continued to work in fertilizer, soil, etc and the injured hand became infected and turned into "cancer" and moved up his arm and killed him. [must have been gangrene - RPU] Mary Elizabeth U insists that her GF and her GM are buried at the Cem at Monksville Baptist Church in Monksville, NC and that stones with J. D. & K. E. are there although perhaps broken. She recalls living in the house which John Dwyer previously owned and that a dark spot on the floor was said to be where he bled during his final illness.

- DEED in 26 OCT 2005 George Atlas U, II to RPU - This Wake Co, NC deed is dated 27 DEC 1899 and concerns land (presumably in the area of Maunsmille, NC) known as land of DICIE UPCHURCH [DICIE A. (MAYNARD) (UPCHURCH) PENDERGRASS] [She was widow of JUBAL U who died in civil war - 5/0 Buster U & GS/0 Walter U, I]. [The land could have come to her from Jubal U but no record of his acquiring land has been found so she could have inherited or bought the land - RPU]

I. SUBSTANCE OF DEED [For copy see Profile of Jubal Upchurch]

George A. U [George Atlas U, I] and wife Catharine U [Also in deed as Cathrine U] [nee Catharine Davis "Kato"] of Orange Co, NC for $40 sell a 1/4 its interest in the land to J. T. U [John T. U ↑ AKA John Dacey U]. A gains land of ELIZA MAYNARD & JOSEPH MAYNARD [Relationship unknown - RPU]

B. UPCHURCH (could be any of several, need more clues). W. G. CLEMENTS (Assume W^m G. Clements, MDG - RPU), Heirs of T. C. SEARS. George signed whereas Catharine placed her mark. W. C. SEARS, J.P. Certified that Catharine signed willingly on 24 APR 1900

II. ADDED INFO - RPU INDEX OF WAKE CO, NC GRANTORS shows above is likely the item filed in DEED BOOK 177 PAGE 267 24 APR 1903 -

- A | ENTRY #1 G. A. U & Catharine U [AS ABOVE] [HVS & WIFE]
 B | ENTRY #16 J. C. U [Joseph Cudup] & MARTHA U [nee Martha Pendergrass] [HVS & WIFE]
 C | ENTRY 2 J. M. U [JACOB M. U] & MARTHA U [nee Martha Golden] [HVS & WIFE]
 D | ENTRY 3 MARTHA U [File as MARTHA U] & KATHARINE U [Crossfile as KATHARINE U & CATHARINE U]

III. RPU CONCLUSIONS: A, B, C represent 4 of the children of Jubal U & Dacey Maynard selling their 1/4th share to child #4 - John T. U. ↑ I interpret D as being the wife of George Atlas U, I and the wife of Joseph C. U as Joseph U (Both named MARTHA) being somehow listed separately. A 5th child [Edward or Elwood U] probably died young without heirs

To: phil@upchurchstory.com

Phil,

I also wanted to let you know about your matches with Candace Cox. She has a few matches with Upchurch's and does not know the connection. You match her on one segment at 16cM. What is very interesting is that you match her exactly on her mTDNA and although this can happen through many generations, her oldest maternal ancestor is Mary Thomas (1785 Caswell Co, NC - 1861 MO) who married Thomas Hightower from Buncombe County, NC. I believe your possibly could share a common maternal ancestor. Your oldest known maternal ancestor is Sally Warren. You also have autosomal matches with 93 people with Thomas ancestors in their tree. It would be interesting to pursue the ancestry of Sally Warren and other Thomas ancestors to see where there may be a connection.

I looked through your files and found some later Thomas's, but nothing this far back.

I get requests like these and then do some research, but we really could use someone to continue more extensive research since I need to get back to DNA research and other requests.

Another one I have for research is Lillian Newman whose husband's grandfather was John Thomas Upchurch and according to the information you have gathered there are missing links back from there. I believe the Upchurch's in Mississippi may be able to help?

Please let me know what you think.

Juanita is the GGD of JTR U. Juanita writes:

We did not receive much info on the family history. I suspect that after John Tillman Riley died and Sarah M. came to TX with her family, contact with the Upchurchs stopped. We were told that we did not have any Upchurch kin in Tx. including the ones who lived in Red River Co.

From Ala

The McGregors came to TX sometime in 1851 or 1852. Sarah M. Upchurch married a Benjah Bryan (Bryant) in 1855 and had 2 children who died young. She signed her name as Bryan.

There is more than one version about when JTR Upchurch's sons came to TX. or how. My father B.R. Upchurch told us that they came to TX with Sarah M, their mother, when John Bartlett was 12 yrs. old. They traveled by covered wagon. Aunt Mary told that Sarah M. left the boys in Ala. with a woman, then a few years later went back for them.

Burwell Upchurch

(NOTE: This is an account of a trip made by Ray NMN White, Jr - RPA)

Northern Christian Co. → AL

at the site of an old abandoned cemetery - known as "Wilson Cemetery" - now completely overgrown & uncared for - was found the marked grave of J.T.R. Upchurch. Said cemetery located on land ~~then~~ owned by Carl Robinson near Mantley, Ala (about two miles south of land where the Upchurches are suspected to have lived last.)

Per Ray White

The aged Negro man who led me (Robert Lee Upchurch + myself) to the site said there used to be a "whole gang" of markers in the cemetery but that over the years people had carried them off knowing the cem. was abandoned. The only marker left was that of J.T.R.U.

4943

Further, the Negro man stated that he remembered plainly there were two Upchurch markers, just alike, side by side.

Question: is the missing Upchurch marker that of Burwell ???

Mary Price who operated small grocery store nearby put us on to the Wilson Cemetery.

Also read somewhere that the babies that died at birth or soon after were buried at Boxelder Cemetery. I donot beleive they are buried there. We have a large family plot and I have never seen any marker for them. They have recently finished plotting and recording all the graves by rows. I check that next time I'm there. This last fall my sister in law and I went through the Upchurch lot. I ended up cleaning a grow off several tombstones.

I havenot found out where Sarah M McGregor ^{Upchurch} was buried, neither the husband nor children.

[NOTE: The "babies" refers to the 3 children of John Bartlett U, Sr who died as infants - namely: Alpha NMN U, Catherine NMN U and Omega NMN U. The "husband" refers to Benjah W. Bryant

⑨ From LG 13 DEC 1998 Juanita Ernestine U Q 204

I did gain a little bit of hand me down info. When John Tillman Riley Upchurch died, his wife Sarah Margerat McGregor did not get a penny of his property. His brothers claimed it under an old English law that property went to male heirs, grown, and not the wife nor minor children. Guess that is the reason they did not claim kin to the Burrell Upchurch family. Also, some of my cousins think Sarah M. MG U. Bryant, her husband, and their two children, plus her oldest son Burrell are all buried in the Boxelder Cem. I'm going to check to see if they find any unmarked graves that might be theirs. I've sent for info and received very little. I did get answers from Grimes and Walker county stating there is not a record of Benjamin R. Upchurch and Ola Carter's marriage. Anyway, I'll get what info I have worked up and send to you in next few months.

○ From the 30 MAR 1999 Juanita Ernestine U D RPA pg 3, 4
 The segment below is from a 5 page Article on Juanita's Upchurch Heritage & concerns John Tillman
Riley U & Sarah Margaret M^cGregor

John Tillman Riley Upchurch was the youngest of Burrell's children and is our great-great-grandfather. He born 19 Feb 1829 in Clark county, AL. He married Sarah Dudley Mary Hester Margaret Scott McGregor. They lived in Chactow county, AL. The 1850 census lists J.T.R. Upchurch as FAMILY #443:

John T.	Age: 22	Born: AL	Occup: Planter	Value 500
Sarah M.	21	AL	Wife
Burrell T.	2	AL	son
John B.	1	AL	son

A planter is an old Virginia term which implies the Planter oversees at least a thousand acres. At the time Burrell came to AL the river bottom land along the Tombigee river was selling around 5¢ to 6¢ an acre.

John Tillman Riley died 11 Jan 1851. He is buried near Yantley in Chactow county, AL.

Sarah Margaret McGregor was born in Marengo county, AL 15 Aug 1829 to William Turner McGregor and his wife Ellender Allen.

Sarah M Upchurch came to TX with members of her family, including her brother John McGregor and his wife Alice Rosser around the last part of 1851 or the first part of 1852. John and Alice's son William Turner McGregor was born 26 July 1852 in Bowie county TX.

Family history passed down was that Sarah M. did not receive any property that belonged to her husband. His brothers obtained the property under the old English law in effect in AL at that time. Sarah M. left her sons with a woman in AL with the idea she would come to TX and get settled, then return for the boys.

The story goes that Sarah M. settled on the east side of Shawnee Creek east of the two-story home later built by John B. Some of us remember seeing the old log cabin in ruins.

Sarah M. married a Benajah Bryan in 1855. He was a bachelor and owned land on west side of Shawnee Creek beginning at the northern edge of present day Baird property, excluding the Gaines property, down past the east road running past the old homestead.

This union produced two children, Fleurette born 30 Oct. 1856. She died 19 April 1869. A son Benajah Windfield born 18 Jan 1858. He died 19 May 1860. Sarah's husband Benajah Bryan died 6 Nov 1858. Sarah M. inherited his property. Benjamin Riley told that his father, John B. came to Texas in a covered wagon when he was twelve (12) years old. This would have been around 1860 or 1861.

Pioneer life had to be difficult for everyone, especially for a woman trying to operate a farm by herself. She had to be strong, determined and hard working to be successful. Sarah was active in the community. She was a founding member of the Salem Baptist Church formed at Boxelder 1856. She was knowledgeable about herbs and ministered to the neighbors in need. Her mode of transportation was riding horseback using a side saddle. Sarah M. assisted with running the farm and helping with the grandchildren until her death 23 Jan 1899. The older grandchildren talked more about their grandmother than they did their mother. They called her Grandmaw Bryant.
