RAIFORD FULGHUM

RAIFORD C FULGHUM

Zebulon Record THUR 29 SEP 1994 Zebulon, NC

Deborah Jean Fulghum of Zebulon and Brian Edward Hartley of Wendell were united in marriage June 4 at Wakefield Central Baptist Church. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. James H. Burch.

The bride is the daughter of Raiford and Dorothy Fulghum of Zebulon. Parents of the bridegroom are Doyle and Melody Hartley of Wendell.

Grandparents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Raiford C. Fulghum.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a satin gown with a V-neckline trimmed with pearls and sequins. The bodice was accented with a flared portrait collar and long sleeves trimmed with pearls and sequins. The cathedral-length train featured appliques of lace accented with pearls and sequins.

For her headpiece, the bride chose a tiara to which a veil was attached. She carried a bouquet of silk white roses, lilies of the valley, white statice, white gardenias, white freesia, ivy, pearls, lace ribbon, white azaleas, white baby's breath and white larksburro.

She was attended by Kelli Boswell as maid of honor and bridesmaids Thommi Arnold, Sheryl Crouse, Donna Driver, Rhonda Joslin, Rene Knight and Sheila Shepherd.

The attendants each wore a jade tinasatin dress with a high-low skirt, sweetheart neckline and a basque waist. The shirred back was accented with a bow. They each carried a bouquet of silk purple and hot pink gerber daisies, roses, purple statice, pink statice, pink cornflowers, purple stock and green ivy.

Kristen Gay was the flower girl and Dylan Wade served as the ring bearer.

The bridegroom chose his father to be his best man. Ushers were Greg Fulghum, Jeff Fulghum, John Hartley, Ronald Pendergrass, Scott Pridgen and Chip Privette.

The bridegroom wore a traditional black, full-dress tuxedo with tails, white pigne shirt, vest and bow tie.

The church was decorated with a 15-branch arch candelabrum adorned with hot pink carnations, purple laitrus, pink stargazers, white fugi mums, yellow roses, hot pink roses and white roses, and two double-heart candelabra with ferns at the base. Two altar arrangements featured hot pink gladiolas, hot pink carnations, white fugi mums, yellow asters, purple laitrus, white daisies, and yellow, hot pink and white roses.

The church doors were adorned with two small sprays of flowers matching the altar arrangements, as was the kneeling bench. There was a memorial candle in memory of a grandmother, Swannanoa Boughman.

Wedding music was presented by Barbara Glasgow, vocalist; Chris Perry, vocalist; Dara Edwards, pianist; and Linda Perry, organist.

The wedding director was Sandra Richardson. Deidre Faison, Jamie Barnes and Joanie Barnes assisted with the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Zebulon High School and East Carolina University. She is a sales associate at Hudson Belk.

Her husband is a graduate of East Wake High School and is employed by the Wendell fire department.

The couple will make their home in Wendell.

Reception

A reception was held immediately after the wedding in the Hendrick's Fellowship Hall at the church. The reception was directed by Franklin Finch and was given by the bride's aunts, cousins and friends.

The menu consisted of a fruit table, vegetable tray, cheese balls with crackers, country ham biscuits, chicken salad sandwiches, miniature broccoli and cheese quiches, wedding cookies, wedding mints, mixed nuts, and punch.

The wedding cake was prepared by Evelyn Glover, a relative of the bride. The cake was decorated with hot pink miniature carnations, ming ferns, larksburro, white dendrobium orchids, yellow asters and hot pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Brian Edward Hartley
Deborah Jean Fulghum

Rehearsal dinner

The rehearsal dinner was given by Chick and Pam Lamm, Hillard and Diane Privette, and Doyle and Melody Hartley. The cookout dinner was held at the home of the bridegroom-elect's parents.

The menu consisted of barbecue chicken, hot dogs, baked beans, slaw and dessert.

Bridesmaids' luncheon

A bridesmaids' luncheon was held at the home of Melody Hartley and was given by the mother of the bridegroom-elect and Diane Privette.

Fulghum keeps watch

Historian is keeper of state's 'attic'

By STUART WELLS
Herald Staff Writer

When the North Carolina Collection Gallery opened last fall in UNC-CH's grand old Wilson Library, it was Apex's Neil Fulgham who was named "keeper" of the unique collection of Tar Heel memorabilia.

Fulgham, 35, who lives with his wife and two children in the Shepherd Vineyard subdivision, began work more than two years ago on exhibit cases and displays for the new gallery, which was carved out of space once used as a reading room for the manuscript-rich North Carolina Collection.

Before coming to UNC-CH to keep watch over the university's "attic" of original artifacts, artwork and furnishings, Fulgham worked for nine years as a museum specialist and later curator of research and development for the N.C. Museum of History in Raleigh.

In the new Chapel Hill gallery, Fulghum is responsible for researching, writing and installing exhibits, such as a display showing the contributions of Durham philanthropist John Sprunt Hill.

Fulghum also carries out conservation work, carefully rematting and reframing old prints, for example. Many of the papers and prints of this century are slowly crumpling under the onslaught of acidic overlays. Fulghum says the threat is referred to as the "slow fires problem."

The Raleigh native also oversees the day-to-day operations of the gallery. "It's a very dynamic place to work," he says from his office

Fulghum also maintains a special collection devoted to Thomas Wolfe, the Asheville novelist. The collection includes this bronze sculture of North Carolina's best known literary figure (above, right) a display of a portion of the co tion's manuscripts and published works by W just off the gallery's main exhibition area. "I'm working with students who for the most part are very enthusiastic."

Since he's the only full-time staff member in the gallery, Fulghum relies in part on work-study students and volunteers to help conduct tours and document the artifacts that tell us about us.

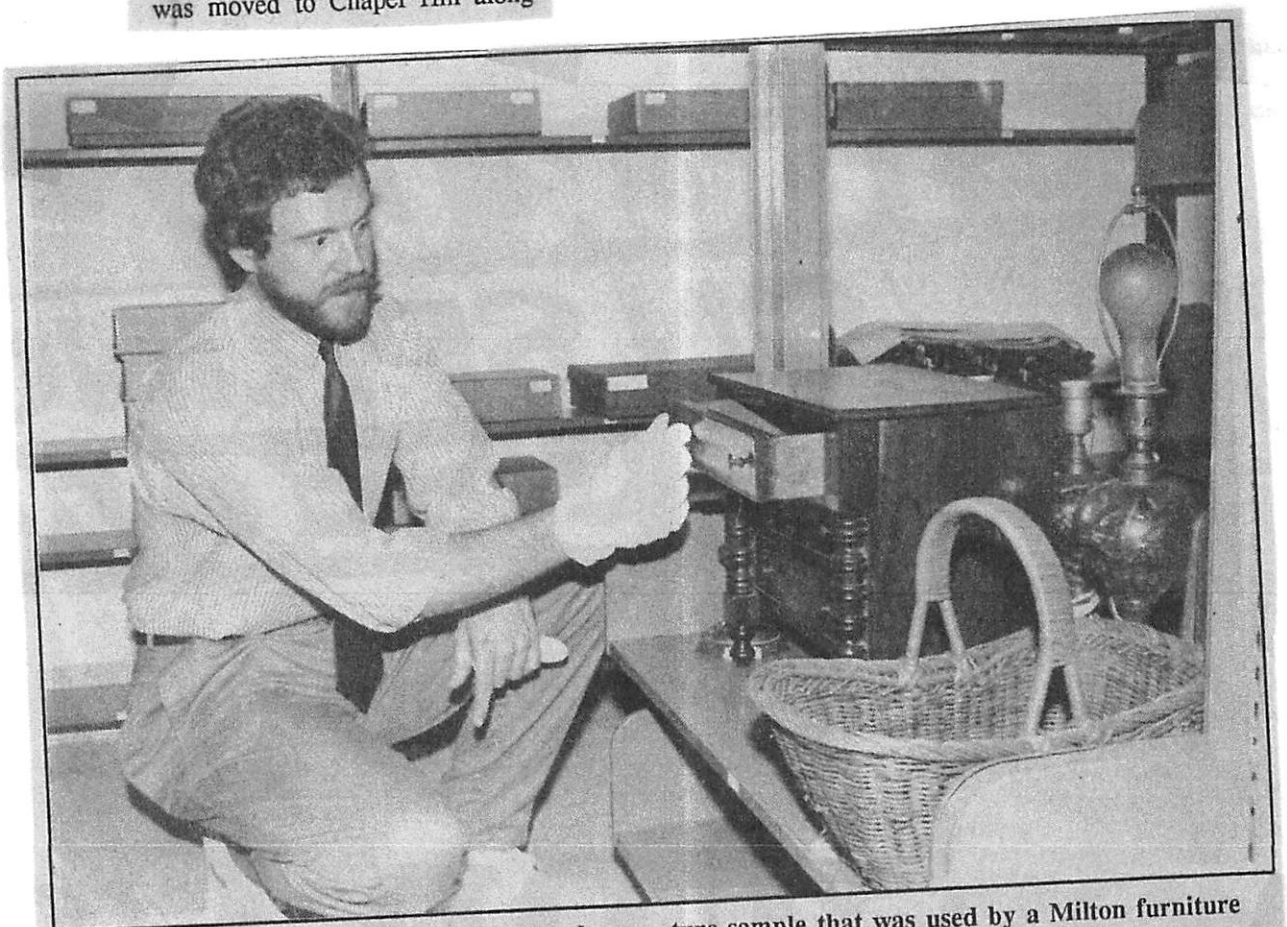
Fulghum insists the gallery will never be finished as long as pieces of living history find their way into the collection. He's currently at work on exhibits that will show life in the early Colonial period of the state's history.

From an early nineteenth centry library taken from Hayes Plantation in Edenton, Fulgham as documented many items common to plantation life. He plans to use the artifacts to highlight slavery in the south.

Most of the plantation's original collection of books is shelved in the octagonally-shaped library, which was moved to Chapel Hill along with some of the library's original furnishings.

Fulgham says one of the most enjoyable aspects of his work is the opportunity he has to meet people from around the world who visit the gallery. Recently, he played host to a student exchange group from Rostov State University, UNC-Chapel Hill's sister college in the Soviet Union.

Fulghum, a history buff for as long as he can remember, says he was attracted to the keeper's job because of the opportunities it offers in research, conservation and exhibit development. Reflecting on his choice of career, he wonders if he wasn't also attracted to a "sense of security that history holds in these times of rapid change.



Neil Fulghum really does use kid gloves when handling the gallery's artifacts, including this miniature sample that was used by a Milton furniture maker to sell is work.

The couple will make their home in Wendell.

Reception

A reception was held immediately after the wedding in the Hendrick's Fellowship Hall at the church. The reception was directed by Franklin Finch and was given by the bride's aunts, cousins and friends.

The menu consisted of a fruit table, vegetable tray, cheese balls with crackers, country ham biscuits, chicken salad sandwiches, miniature broccoli and cheese quiches, wedding cookies, wedding mints, mixed nuts, and punch.

The wedding cake was prepared by Evelyn Glover, a relative of the bride. The cake was decorated with hot pink miniature carnations, ming ferns, larksburro, white dendrobium orchids, yellow asters and hot pink sweetheart roses.
