INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this booklet is to record and present the history of the Ray family of Wake County, North Carolina. The story begins with Alfonso Columbus Ray (known as A.C. and Von) who was born in Wake County in 1855 and died at age 84 in 1939 in Raleigh.

All of us know something about our living relatives. We enjoy telling stories about their achievements and exploits. Yet our knowledge of our family often does not go beyond those family members we actually know. Few of us have been fortunate to have known our great grandparents. In this booklet the Ray family is traced as far as the records available to the author permit. Details are included on the life and times of many ancestors to describe events which influenced their lives and to document the family heritage.

The Ray family of Wake County has been traced with certainty to Nathan Ray who was born circa 1765 and drowned in the Neuse River on or about the first of January in 1822. The earliest record found of a Ray in the area of the Neuse River Valley which became Wake County is a 1759 deed involving Francis Ray and his wife Rachel. On July 21, 1759, they acquired 100 acres on the south side of the Neuse River in what was then Johnston County, North Carolina. It is believed, but not proven, that Francis and Rachel Ray are the parents or grandparents of Nathan Ray.

According to family tradition, the Ray family lived in Virginia before settling along the Neuse River. Francis Ray and his wife, Rachel, lived in Prince George County, Virginia until 1728, in Brunswick County, Virginia from 1728 to 1746 and Lunenburg County, Virginia from 1746 to 1759. Francis Ray (born circa 1700) was a prominent farmer, blacksmith and he kept an ordinary (tavern) in his home in Lunenburg County. He was also active in purchasing and selling property in Virginia and North Carolina.

Trips to Raleigh in 1997 researching Wake County deeds, wills, estate, marriage, military, birth, death, census, tax, court orders, and other records began to provide details on early generations. Traces of our ancestors were also found in history books, published genealogies, church records, tombstone inscriptions, land grants, and other sources. The Daughters of the American Revolution Library in Washington, D.C. is a premier genealogical research center and contains over 135,000 volumes. The National Genealogical Society Library in Arlington, Virginia was also a valuable source of information and provided access to the Jesus Christ Church of Latter Day Saints ancestral computer files. Correspondence with the North Carolina State Archives in Raleigh and the Register of Deeds for numerous counties in North Carolina were sources for copies of historical documents to prove or disprove tentative conclusions. Published and unpublished sources were consulted to include research and conclusions of previous authors. Many relatives provided details that are included in this booklet. Bradley Ray, Ola Keith Ray, David Carter, Rachel Goldston and Dr. Wilmer Conrad Betts were especially helpful. I am grateful to all who assisted.

A professional genealogist, Tim Kearney, was retained to answer the more difficult questions. Tim lives north of Raleigh in a home built in 1759 by his forefather near the area inhabited by the Ray ancestors and descendants. After completing the second assignment, Tim wrote to "Cousin Bill Ray" stating that he had performed sufficient research to confirm that we share two common ancestors, Buckner Pace and Joseph Davis. Tim provided details on our common ancestors that he obtained during years of researching his own family. Tim was also able to identify the maiden names of many wives which enhances this family history by making it possible to include related families and earlier generations.

A genealogy is never finished. There is always the desire to trace the family to earlier generations and to obtain details on the life of a relative from times long past.

Notwithstanding best efforts for accuracy, there are undoubtedly errors and omissions in this family history. Readers are encouraged to contact the author to correct errors and to add new information.
