② See let 15 MAR 1999 Melva Davis U to RPU

Melva provides a packet she recently got from Betty Massengale who is now wid to - - DALEY and lives in Albany, KY as do her 3 upstanding children. The letter makes reference to Charles U having been killed in an accident but not to the fact that Betty & Charles divorced. The packet provides considerable family history on Betty as will be obvious from biopic sheets prepared by RPU from the packet.

Dear Delmar Masengale

This is to acknowledge receipt of your order for a one year subscription to Urchurch Bulletin and your money order for $10.00 in payment for same.

The first issue will go to press in a few days and should be ready for distribution about March 1, 1980.

I sendd herewith one some extra flyer on U B in case you might find them useful.

I hope you will be pleased with Urchurch Bulletin.

Sincerely yours
Phil Urchurch

MASENGILL, HOWARD ROGAN

F360

Howard Rogan Masengill was born June 27, 1905 on the Rogan Farm near Rogersville, Tenn. in Hawkins County.

The family bought and moved to a farm near Morristown, Tennessee February, 1907. He graduated from Morristown High School in May, 1924. He entered The University of Tennessee in September, 1924 and graduated in June, 1928.

While at The University he lettered in track, won a gold medal in boxing, was on the Cross Country team and on the rifle championship team for three years. Took ROTC four years and was commissioned Second Lieut in the Army Reserves.

The next thirteen years he taught school

H.R. Masengill

Doris Case Masengill

at The Alvin C. York Agricultural Institute in Jamestown, Tennessee and Jonesboro High School in Jonesboro, Tennessee.

During these thirteen years he attended the Company Officers Course, Heavy Weapons Course, and the Battalion Officers Course at Fort Benning, Georgia.

He graduated from the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth January 5, 1945. Served with First Tank Destroyers Group in European-African, Middle Eastern Campaign, Army of Occupation in Germany and Executive Officer of Taegu Military Post in Korea.

In the Inter-Allied Shooting Match he won first place in competition with picked teams representing Great Britain and France held in Tunis, Tunisia, December, 1943.

Rogan Masengill married Doris Case of Jamestown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ward R. Case Sr. on December 22, 1938. Doris was educated in grade school in Jamestown, Cumberland Mt. High School in Crossville, Tenn., and at Cumberland University in Lebanon, Tennessee and Draughtons Business College in Nashville, Tennessee. She was employed as a legal secretary in her fathers office after she finished business school and until she was married.

Rogan and Doris have one daughter Myra Sue Masengill. She attended grammar schools in nine different states and graduated from high school in Fayetteville, North Carolina. She attended Greensboro College, Greensboro, North Carolina two years then transferred to The University of Tennessee at Knoxville, Tennessee and graduated in 1962 with a B.S. Degree in Home Economics. She now teaches Home Economics at Morristown-Hamblen High School East.

Sue married Tommy R. Fox of Morristown, Tennessee on July 29, 1972. They have one daughter, Allison Case Fox born June 10, 1979. Tommy is a graduate of Carson Newman College, Jefferson City, Tennessee and has a Masters Degree from Union College in Kentucky. He taught school eleven years after graduation. He is now Regional Vice President with A.L. Williams Company.

Awards Presented in Crop Science, 1996

MARTIN A. MASSENGALE

DeKalb Crop Science Distinguished Career Award

MARTIN A. MASSENGALE was born 25 Oct 1933 on a farm near Monticello, KY, the third son of Elbert G. and Orpha Massengale. He received his elementary education in a one-room country school and secondary education at Wayne County High School. He married the former Ruth Klingelhofer in 1959, and they have one son, and one daughter.

He received his B.S. in agriculture from Western Kentucky Univ. in 1952, and his M.S. and Ph.D. from the Univ. of Wisconsin-Madison in 1954 and 1956, respectively. After receiving his Ph.D. Dr. Massengale spent 2 yr in military service working on a classified project. Following military service, he accepted a position in the Dep. of Agronomy at the Univ. of Arizona in 1958. His primary responsibilities were to teach and do research in forage crops physiology and production and crop ecology.

Dr. Massengale taught courses in Forage Crop Physiology and Production, Crop Ecology, Principles of Agronomy, Plant Science, and Field Studies in Agronomy at the University of Arizona. He was recognized early in his career as an outstanding teacher, and was selected Professor of the Year, College of Agriculture in 1964-1965, and received the Faculty Recognition Award from the Tucson, Arizona, Retail Trade Bureau. Dr. Massengale was selected to participate in a 1967 conference on Undergraduate Teaching in Plant and Soil Science sponsored by the Commission on Education in Agriculture and Natural Resources, National Academy of Science. He was also an active participant in the ASA-NSF sponsored Visiting Scientist program in recognition of his teaching competence and abilities. In addition, he organized the Crops and Soils Club at the Univ. of Arizona and served as its advisor for 4 yr.

Dr. Massengale's research work in Arizona focused on forage crop physiology, ecology, and management. He and his students were the first to conduct research on the basic physiology of carbohydrate manufacture, storage, and translocation in alfalfa grown in the irrigated, southwestern desert areas of the USA where temperatures frequently exceed 110°F in the summer months and alfalfa grows continuously throughout the year. Based on this work they were able to explain the "summer slump" in production and to develop management practices to maintain stands for multiple years. In conjunction with an alfalfa breeder, improved cultivars and management practices were developed that increased yields and profitability. Some of these practices form the basis for current alfalfa management in irrigated desert environments worldwide. They also conducted pioneering work on floral initiation in alfalfa which resulted in a better understanding of key factors in alfalfa seed production in the southwestern desert areas.

During the time that Dr. Massengale served as department head of agronomy and plant genetics and as associate dean and associate director of the Arizona Agricultural Experiment Station, he encouraged faculty and students to actively participate in their professional societies, recruited a talented and productive faculty, and expanded research and extension programs to better meet the needs of the agricultural industry in the state and region.

Dr. Massengale left the Univ. of Arizona in 1976 to become vice chancellor of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the Univ. of Nebraska-Lincoln. This Institute includes the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, the Agricultural Research Division, the Cooperative Extension Division, the Conservation and Survey Division, the Water Center, the International Programs Division, and the Nebraska College of Technical Agriculture. The International Programs Division was added during his tenure as vice chancellor. His work in improving relationships with all phases of the agricultural industry was extremely important in laying the groundwork for later improvements in the research and teaching facilities at the Univ. of Nebraska. He was selected to become chancellor of the Univ. of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1981. In 1989, he was selected to become interim president of the multi-campus Univ. of Nebraska and was named president in 1991.

Holding positions as both chancellor of the Lincoln campus and president of the Univ. of Nebraska, he was one of the few agronomists to ever serve as a chief executive officer of a major land-grant University. In this capacity, he was responsible for greatly enhancing the physical facilities at the University for Agriculture as well as other disciplines. These included plant and animal facilities which are among the best available anywhere. Plans for a new biotechnology center were initiated when he was chancellor and funds were acquired and the building constructed when he was president. This building, the George W. Beadle Center for Biotechnology, provides scientists and students access to the best technology and facilities available today for conducting research. Through Dr. Massengale's efforts, the University also acquired the 12 000 acre Gudmundsen Sandhills Ranch via a donation from the Gudmundsen family. This provided the University with its first permanent research station in the Nebraska Sandhills which is a unique grassland ecosystem that covers about one-fourth of the state. In addition, new agricultural facilities at Research and Extension Centers across Nebraska were constructed.

As chancellor and president he further demonstrated his commitment to teaching and service by establishing teaching, advising, and service awards for faculty and staff. He also established the first Departmental Award for Excellence in Teaching with a $25 000 stipend. This award was to encourage outstanding teaching through collegial and mutually supportive departmental initiatives.

In addition to his work in building and improving the University of Nebraska during the last 20 yr, he has provided service to agronomy, agriculture, and higher education in both the USA and abroad by distinguished service in a large range of activities including serving as chairman of the Presidents Commission of the NCAA; chair of the Board of the College Football Association; member of the influential Knight Foundation Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics; chair of the Board of the American Registry of Certified Professionals in Agronomy, Crops and Soils (ARC-PACS); chair of the Board of the Mid-America International Agricultural Consortium; board of directors of the Agronomic Science Foundation; board of directors for the Council of Agricultural Science and Technology; board of directors of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation; board of directors, executive committee and chair of Commission on Information Technology of National Association of State Universities and Land-grant Colleges; presidents of the CSSA and the Western Society of Crop Science, and numerous other activities. He has also provided service to 10 different countries in a range of consulting and advising activities dealing with agriculture and higher education.
