Robert (Robin) Chamblee

Little River District, Bertie and Wake Counties, North Carolina

Robert was probably born ca. 1738. His first land transaction was in 1759 in Bertie Co, Nc. Robert most likely married Esther Warren, daughter of Benjamin Warren, Sr.. of Bertie County, NC. There is one single reference to Robert and Hester (Esther) Chamblee together in court records. Esther Chamblee is listed as a member of the Poplar Springs Baptist Church in Franklin Co, NC. In 1744, Bertie Co, NC, Benjamin Warren proved his rights and listed his wife, Esther and others: James, Benjamin, Margaret, Mary Patience, William and Esther Warren.

It is interesting that you quote information from TJ Vick Phillips - I know her. Her grandfather (Algernon F Vick and my grandmother (Emma Lou Vick) were brother and sister. Her grandmother (Rhoda Griffin who married Algernon Vick) died when Trudi Jo's father (Roy Lee Vick) was born. Algernon already had six other children and the new baby (Roy Lee Vick) was given to his sister (Emma Lou Vick who married John Madison Rice) and told that it would be hers if she could raise him. Therefore, I always knew him as an Uncle (brother to my mother) although he knew who his biological parents were and interacted with his biological siblings as well as his Rice cousins (although raised as a sibling).

→ She died when child #7 Roy Lee Vick was born and the child was given to his Aunt Emma Lou Vick to raise

It is interesting that you quote information from TJ Vick Phillips - I know her. Her grandfather (Algernon F Vick and my grandmother (Emma Lou Vick) were brother and sister. Her grandmother (Rhoda Griffin who married Algernon Vick)

died when Trudi Jo's father (Roy Lee Vick) was born. Algernon already had six other children and the new baby (Roy Lee Vick) was given to his sister (Emma Lou Vick who married John Madison Rice) and told that it would be hers if she could raise him. Therefore, I always knew him as an Uncle (brother to my mother) although he knew who his biological parents were and interacted with his biological siblings as well as his Rice cousins (although raised as a sibling).

→ She died when child #7 Roy Lee Vick was born and the child was given to his Aunt Emma Lou Vick to raise → GPO Josephine Almeda Gay b. 1856 (FC, NC) presumed D/O Emmie u "Nessy", presumed D/O Sain u & GPO Richard U, III - Head of clan.

COTTON FARMERS face both production and marketing challenges in the future, says North Carolina grower Lyn Vick.

He's the quintessential modern day, young farmer: cell phone in one hand, explaining tobacco harvesting instructions in Spanish, and office phone in the other, explaining spraying information for cotton in English.

Hard work, innovation and gritty determination have helped Linwood "Lyn" Vick get where he is today with his family's farming operation — but having the right gene pool didn't hurt a bit. In his case, the apple truly didn't fall far from the tree.

His mother and father, Jerome and Dianne Vick, started the farming operation with 15 acres of land near Wilson, N.C., and headquarters for Vick Family Farms remains near that original farm. Today, however, the farming operation encompasses more than 6,000 acres.

Over the years, the Vick family name has been associated with the country's top producers of tobacco and sweet potatoes. In the late 1980s, they added cotton to their farming roster, and have been equally successful growing fiber.

Vick's sister, Charlotte, who is still actively involved in the farming operation, made her mark early at Vick Farms as a cotton scout. "I often remind Lyn of how much he didn't like growing cotton back in those days," she laughs.

R. EMMA VICK

B. WOOD VICK

Today, Vick not only likes growing cotton, he's very good at it. His achievements in cotton production and his use of environmentally sound practices have earned him recognition as the Farm Press/Cotton Foundations 2013 High Cotton Award winner for the Southeast states.

North Carolina State University Extension Agent Norman Harrell, who nominated Vick for the award, says, "Lyn and his family continually push the edge of technology, and do it in a way that helps them produce both high yielding and high quality cotton crops year after year. The entire family is always open to working with us in any way they can to help us develop meaningful information that could help other farmers."

The Vicks started out growing conventional cotton in 1987 — back in the era when he didn't like it so much.

"We had a big problem with soil erosion," Vick says. "Early in the growing season especially, our conventional cotton was literally sandblasted by the fine, sandy soils on much of our farm."

"When Roundup Ready cotton came along, we switched to all no-till for cotton, soybeans, double-crop soybeans, and wheat. Our tobacco and sweet potatoes are grown with conventional tillage, so going no-till on cotton and soybeans helped improve the tilth of our soil and helped with erosion problems."

Much of his cotton is in a four-year rotation with sweet potatoes, tobacco and soybeans. On some land not so well-suited to these crops, he uses a three-year rotation, which sometimes requires back-to-back years of cotton.

Having sweet potatoes and tobacco in their cotton rotation is a bit unusual, but he says it has been a blessing in battling glyphosate-resistant pigweed.

For example, cotton is grown one year, followed by tobacco. "We're using different chemicals for weed and grass control," Vick notes. "Plus, we're deep plowing and bedding our tobacco land, and in some cases hand hoeing and pulling weeds."

"Thus, we're able to reduce the seed bank for pigweed. Other than soybeans, we plant wheat on all our land. We've found that with a thick cover crop on the land over fall and winter months, we have less weed pressure."

"Even after Roundup Ready cotton came on the market, we continued to use yellow or white herbicides, so we never got the real buildup of pigweed that so many other growers are battling now."

"I remember the long battle we went through to get rid of boll weevils, and now we are facing as big, if not bigger, problems with herbicide-resistant weeds."

Another advantage of the unusual cotton rotation, Vick says, is suppression of nematode problems. Most of their tobacco and sweet potato land is treated with Telone and Lorsban, so they are carrying out practices as a part of their normal farming operation that gives a side benefit of reducing nematode populations.

Both sweet potatoes and tobacco are labor-intensive crops, and Vick Farms is a pioneer in using legal, H-2A labor.

"Having adequate labor on hand for these crops can be a big advantage in our cotton operation," Vick says. "If we get in a situation where we can't get in a field with the right herbicide, we can always use some of our labor to clean up those fields."

Each member of the Vick family speaks Spanish. The farm has 10 full-time employees, and all but two speak Spanish.

"It's a tool that's important in our farming operation," he says. "Whether or not I'm fluent in Spanish, I don't know, but I can explain to any of our H-2A workers what I want them to do and how I want them to do it. Lack of communication should never be an excuse on our farm for not getting things done right."

Vick didn't just grow up on a farm, and he didn't just grow up working on a farm — he grew up working hard and smart on Vick Family Farms. He graduated from the prestigious North Carolina State Agriculture Institute in 1997, then came back to begin learning the farming business from his parents and with his sister.

He was in charge of fieldwork on the farm, working primarily with cotton and soybeans. Charlotte was scouting cotton for the family farm and for other cotton operations in the area, as well as taking over marketing of family-grown crops.

The learning process was moving along on schedule for Vick, but in 2002 fate stepped in and his learning curve became much steeper.

During a trip to Mexico, Jerome Vick contracted a rare virus that resulted in Guillane Barre Syndrome. Though he has made a good recovery from the disease, he spent 165 days in Duke University Hospital — in a coma for a while, and paralyzed from the neck down for a much longer while. This adversity struck in the midst of the 2002 cropping season.

"I remember standing in the emergency room at the hospital, when one of the doctors told my father he had Guillan Barre and asked Dad what he did for a living."

"I'm a farmer," Dad replied, "and the doctor told him he'd have to take a year off from farming. After the doctor left, I told Dad, 'That doctor doesn't know us very well — we don't let things like this slow us down.'"

For several months, Jerome's job was survival and Dianne's job was helping him. Running the sprawling farming operation fell to Vick and Charlotte, who by that time had added 'Mom' to her resume.

Jerome missed the 2002 cropping season, but Vick didn't. That year the farm produced some of its best crops, and when his father returned home from Duke University Hospital, the farming operation was bigger and more productive than he left it.

At the time Jerome became ill, Vick Family Farms was about 3,500 acres. In the decade since his return to the farm, the operation has almost doubled in size.

In the past few years, Vick Family Farms has won national, state and local awards. Among them are the North Carolina Farm Family of the Year, National Young Farmer of the Year, and designation as a North Carolina Soil Conservation Farm.

A visit to the farming headquarters makes it evident that doing things right is a high priority. Not only the crops are kept in pristine condition, but also the equipment, the sweet potato packing operation and tobacco barns, and even the headquarters building and grounds.

"We were taught to do things right, and to do things timely," Vick says. "If we do everything we can for a crop and for our land, then Mother Nature will treat us right when she can."

NOTE; This report reveals the full name of the mysterious T.S. Vick Phillips who has been a presence on the Internet.
- RPU

It is interesting that you quote information from TJ Vick Phillips - I know her. Her grandfather (Algernon F Vick and my grandmother (Emma Lou Vick) were brother and sister. Her grandmother (Rhoda Griffin who married Algernon Vick)

died when Trudi Jo's father (Roy Lee Vick) was born. Algernon already had six other children and the new baby (Roy Lee Vick) was given to his sister (Emma Lou Vick who married John Madison Rice) and told that it would be hers if she could raise him. Therefore, I always knew him as an Uncle (brother to my mother) although he knew who his biological parents were and interacted with his biological siblings as well as his Rice cousins (although raised as a sibling).

① From Email 21 OCT 2010 Rosalie Jynell Sykes to RPU

NOTE; This report reveals the full name of the mysterious T.S. Vick Phillips who has been a presence on the Internet.
- RPU

It is interesting that you quote information from TJ Vick Phillips - I know her. Her grandfather (Algernon F Vick and my grandmother (Emma Lou Vick) were brother and sister. Her grandmother (Rhoda Griffin who married Algernon Vick)

died when Trudi Jo's father (Roy Lee Vick) was born. Algernon already had six other children and the new baby (Roy Lee Vick) was given to his sister (Emma Lou Vick who married John Madison Rice) and told that it would be hers if she could raise him. Therefore, I always knew him as an Uncle (brother to my mother) although he knew who his biological parents were and interacted with his biological siblings as well as his Rice cousins (although raised as a sibling).
