Days of valor in World War II:

Apex veterans tell their stories

By SANDY BARNES
Herald Editor

Facing uncertain destinies, over 60 young men travelled from Apex to Europe and the Pacific to serve their country during World War II.

Going from the small, peaceful town surrounded by farms and tobacco fields, sons and husbands found themselves fighting Nazis and Japanese while struggling for survival in remote and hostile places.

Here are some of the stories of Apex veterans who carry memories of World War II etched in their minds and hearts.

From farming to fighting

△ Apex resident Lloyd Goolsby got a head start on military service by enlisting in the Army in July 1939 -- two years before the United States entered World War II. A young farmer whose tobacco crop wasn't doing so well, Goolsby said the army looked like a good place to be.

However, when 18-year-old Goolsby went to Ft. Bragg in Fayetteville, he found those who didn't think much of soldiers. People were not only opposed to the United States becoming involved in a foreign conflict, but also to the military in general, he said. Goolsby said he remembers a sign in the front yard of a Fayetteville home which said, "No dogs or soldiers allowed on the lawn."

Goolsby stayed at Ft. Bragg until the United States entered World War II after the Dec. 7, 1941

Editor's note: The Apex Herald would like to express appreciation to Ed Walls, Mayor Everette Edwards, and other townspeople for their help in researching and writing this article.

bombing of Pearl Harbor by Japanese forces. He was sent to Scotland, England and then to Africa where he served under General Patton as chief of a gun section.

From Africa, Goolsby left for Italy where he and his gun crew were attached to the 5th Army. After months of wearing big "13" insignias on their helmets, Goolsby said they changed to a "5A" identification.

None of the men in Goolsby's outfit was hurt until they were reassigned, he said. The day after he and his buddies began wearing the 5th Army insignia, two men were killed and Goolsby was wounded.

A shell from a German gun that Goolsby had tried to destroy the day before landed in the area where he and his men were. Because the ground was soft, the shell buried itself three feet into the ground. Its impact knocked Goolsby unconscious, giving him a concussion. He woke up the next day in a hospital near Cassino, Italy where he had been fighting.

Goolsby left Italy Dec. 19, 1944, arriving home on Christmas Eve. He said he was so excited about coming home that he gave the cab driver $5 to take him one block to his house. When Goolsby's 3-year-old daughter Dorothy saw him, she said, "This is my daddy!" He hadn't seen the child since she was a young baby.

Looking back on his war experience, Goolsby, now 73, says with an amiable smile he considers himself very fortunate to have survived.

Leaving in the face of death

△ When New Hill resident Wallace Womble went to fight in World War II, he said he didn't have much hope of coming back. Shortly before he left to go overseas, Womble and his family received word that both his brother and cousin had been killed in combat.

△ The two men died one day apart. Womble's cousin Sam K. Womble died in France Nov. 20, 1944. The very next day, Womble's older brother Miller was killed in England.

Womble went to fight in Germany in 1944. He said he was supposed to go to the Pacific after the war in Europe ended, but that the dropping of the atomic bomb ended the conflict there.

△ Dewey Goodwin left Apex for the Army in 1942, going with about a dozen other young men from town. However, after getting to camp, they were split up, he said.

Goodwin didn't see his Apex buddies again until after the war.

Goodwin was one of several men from Apex who fought in the Battle of the Bulge in Germany near the end of the war. Describing it as one of the bloodiest, "most cold-blooded battles" he fought in, Goodwin said almost his entire battalion was killed in combat.

A mess sergeant who served in a mobile tank battalion which moved from unit to unit, Goodwin said, "They never did give us a break." His battalion saw so much combat that Goodwin said President Harry Truman issued it a commendation, and said the outfit would not have to fight in the Pacific.

△+△ Goodwin was one of six from Apex with his family name who served in World War II. His brothers Leon and Glen also went to war, along with Donald Goodwin, Lennie Goodwin, Robert Goodwin and Wallace Goodwin.

△ Apex resident Lloyd Goolsby pictured now, and with his wife and mother-in-law while in the Army during World War II.

△ Four Maynard brothers took part in the war. John H. Maynard was in the Army engineer corps, and also fought in the Battle of the Bulge. When the war in Europe ended in 1945, Maynard was sent to the Pacific for a while. He came home to his wife on Christmas Day 1945. △ John H. Maynard's brothers Durwood and Gerald also were in the Army. His brother Bob was in the Navy.

In for the duration

△ John O. Maynard saw 47 months of action in the Pacific during World War II. Entering the Army in 1940, Maynard was sent to Hawaii. When the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor in Dec. 1941, Maynard was 18 miles away at Schofield Barracks. Maynard said 42 planes at the harbor airfield were destroyed during the attack.

An infantryman, Maynard was later sent to New Guinea where he said the temperature soared to 135 degrees at times.

(John O. Maynard is not a relative of the other Maynard men mentioned.)

△ Ed Walls was injured before he left this country. While on a drill in Washington, D.C. a machine gun backfired and seriously damaged his nose.

While serving in the Philippines, Walls devised a way of beating the heat and making things better for the troops. Working at a supply depot, Walls found enough parts to build an ice machine. He then built an ice box and filled it with ice and Coca Colas for the men.

Walls also said he found flour to make biscuits with, which the soldiers enjoyed.

Walls saw three-and-a-half years of service during World War II, going from England and France to Japan and the Philippines.

Surviving a crash landing

△ Mayor Everette Edwards signed up for the Air Force the day after his 18th birthday. Hoping to become a fighter pilot, Edwards served as a gunner in the turret of a B-17 bomber the last year of the war.

Stationed in England, Edwards was attached to the 92nd Bomber Group. He and his fellow crew members flew 20 missions over German territory.

During his last mission, Edwards survived a crash landing. While flying over enemy-occupied Czechoslovakia, German anti-air craft artillery attacked Edwards' plane, causing it to lose its engines.

The plane crash landed into a field in France near an American military hospital.

△ Edwards was unhurt, and after spending a few days in France, he and the other crew members went back to their base in England.

The Apex men who became

soldiers, sailors, and airmen in World II had good fortune for the most part. Most of them came home to their families. Yet, as in towns and cities across America, there were those who did not return. Besides the Womble men, △ Herbert Allen Sutton was killed at St. Lo during the Normandy invasion. △ Liggett Gilliam died on a B-52 bomber while saving the lives of his crew members.

The World War II legacy of Apex is one rich in valor, patriotism, and the will of young men to survive.

Both those still living and those who are no longer with us are an indelible part of the town's history.

○ From: The Dispatch MAR 2003 Vol 17#1 Apex, NC HIST. SOC.

I saw Apex Come out of the Woods

by the late D.W. Maynard in 1941

Apex was all woods, the first house was that of A.D. Upchurch's place [300 S. Salem St., house was moved and is now next to cemetery on West Moore St.]; the next one was William Passmore's, now the Baldwin place [Tingen Road and James Street, house burned]. Mr. John Ellington bought the land for the timber. During the War [Civil] the railroad was graded, starting from Cary. A few years after the war, the track was laid for the station. Mr. Q. I. Hudson was made agent and kept it almost a lifetime. He taught many boys telegraphy, two of whom are outstanding officials of the Seaboard Railroad now. [Mr. E. E. Maynard would have been one, other unknown. Mr. E.E. Maynard's daughter is Nancy Maynard Brown].

After the depot was located, Mr. Ellington built the house now owned by Mr. Bud Beasley. Center and N. Elm now owned by Colleen Newman. Harry Beasley, was born in this house when his grandfather was owner.) The second house was the Norris house [where Apex United Methodist Church CLC stands on S. Elm St.]. The third was also on east side of the railroad, on Chatham Street. This house is now occupied by Mr. Will Edwards at the corner of N. Elm St. and E. Chatham St [now home of Ron and Crystal Ragland]. Mr. Ellington gave the house to his son-in-law, Judge Thompson. The first church, a small building used by the Methodists, was built by Mr. Ellington. The building was on the corner of Moore and Elm Street. It was used for a school building until it burned. The Baptist church was on the site, now the home of A.T. Seymour, Sr. (now owned by Tommy and Robin Seymour, 306 S. Salem St.) and Mr. Roy Walls, Sr. [south of the Seymour's has been torn down; however, the front walkway remains]. The first teachers were Rev. H.W. Norris and Miss Julia Roberts, a sister-in-law of Frank Page. At first we had two schools, a male and female.

Mr. Ellington built some nice store buildings. Then other people came and built. Apex has gone forward to the present day. The first resident physician was Dr. A. J. Thompson. Apex has never succeeded as a manufacturing town. We have had saw mills, cotton mills, planing mills, flour and knitting mills. For several years we had several good tobacco warehouses. Apex gets its name because it is the highest point on the Seaboard [now CSX] Railroad between Hamlet and Norlina. Apex is a real country town, with a good school, good churches and good people.
