Dear Dr. Phil Upchurch, my name is Warren Harvey and I became familiar with your organization through Mr. Rebecca Bradley. She was my Piano teacher at Ravenscroft and I ran into her in the hallway while at work. My office is on the 2nd floor of the same building as your office. I work as a CPA in a tax and accounting firm. I also found that you were in the same department as my granddad Dr. Guy L Jones at NCSU. I talked with him and he know of you very well. He told me you had a big interest in genealogy.

I visited with Ms. Bradley this past thursday July 8th and talked about my family the Buffaloe family which we saw was in the swift creek township along with the Upchurch family which I read you are doing a project on.

I joined your organization today at the 20 dollar membership level and look forward to researching my family and learning about genealogy. My undergraduate degree was in History so I feel this is right up my alley. I have sent this same email to your email address as well.

Thanks,

Warren Harvey, CPA

Hi Warren---

Delighted to hear from you and to have you as a new 2016 member of Allied Families. Guy and I were undergraduates in Agronomy together as well as fellow Professors at NCSU. Becky and I are first cousins once removed but also very good friends. Becky gets credit for being the first Cary Facility Volunteer to recruit a new Allied Families member. I am well acquainted with the several branches of the Wake County, N. C. Buffaloe Family. I am most pleased that you want to learn more about your heritage and our Cary Facility is a great place to proceed.

As a start I would like to learn how you fit into the Buffaloe family. Do you have anything already organized you could send me? Otherwise, if you could send me several names going back to the early 1900's that link you to your Buffaloe heritage I will search my files and let you know what I find as a start. I have an excellent set of Biofiles for the Buffaloe family and a fair number of contacts. You may wish to study our 2007 website www.upchurchstory.com password 2013upchrch# to see what we have that interests you. There are 4,000 pages of the Upchurch Bulletin posted and no doubt some Buffaloe/Buffalo entries. Next, I invite you to visit our Allied Families website www.alliedfamilies.com password 2014allied#. There you will note we are in various stages of "Enrolling" 28 families that had a patriarch or matriarch who lived about the time of the Revolution. Most of the families are "allied" and are from north-central N. C. We are not scheduled to enroll the Buffaloe family but with enough encouragement from the living members of this family could consider it. Even if we do not you can be very active in the Cary Facility researching, preserving and sharing your Buffaloe heritage.

I look forward to hearing g from yo and to meeting you when come nest fall.

Sending all Best Wishes~

Phil Upchurch

△ COPY OF FAMILY ECHO
TO INTERNET SITES

This is what I have done on my own. Feel free to login and poke around. I need to update the Buffalo branch but they are the same ones as in the Swift Creek township.

You have to click in names to see other branches . At the bottom there is a find people that list everybody and will take you to that persons branch. This program is easy to use, simple and free.

I had trouble going back further in the Hicks lines with open sources but hope to nail down details. To many Martin Hicks. My grandmother has a book on all this but she is to tired these days to bring it out.

The brickell famiky I was told had a castle in England and my grandmother may have visited the ruins at some point.

As you can see i have a lot of work to do.

My great great grandmother was married to Dr. Alonzo Buffaloe .

I only heard that the Buffaloe family had a plantation but could not find any online info in that regards. The colonel hicks kids i need to work on as well as i have conflicting info on Lizzy Hicks.

The contact pane is where i put my source for the copied bibliography from websites.

Notes for Dr.-Alonzo-j Buffaloe:

Bio notes: ALONZO J. BUFFALOE, M. D., established in the successful practice of his profession in the attractive little city of Alexandria, Hanson county, is a native of the fine old state of North Carolina, having been born in Raleigh, Wake county, and being the son of B. B. and Cornelia Buffaloe, representatives of old and honored southern families. The father is devoting his life to agriculture and is a man of prominence and influence in his community. Dr. Buffaloe was accorded excellent educational advantages in his youthful days, having secured his preliminary discipline in the common schools of his native state and having entered Wake Forest College, where he received his literary training. In the meanwhile he had determined to prepare himself for the noble profession to which he is now giving his attention, and was matriculated in that celebrated technical institution of the national metropolis, Bellevue Hospital Medical College, in New York city, being there graduated in 1886 and receiving his coveted degree of Doctor of Medicine. After his graduation, wishing to be more thoroughly equipped for the arduous duties of his chosen profession, he took special courses in chemistry, physical diagnosis, surgery and army and navy dressings in Bellevue and Mount Sinai Hospitals. He then located in the city of Raleigh, North Carolina, determined to win his professional spurs in his native state, and there he initiated the active practice of medicine and surgery, being for some time connected with the city hospital, where he gained still further clinical experience of the most valuable order. He continued to be there engaged in practice until 1901. In 1895 he availed himself for a while of the advantages of the post-graduate course at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Maryland. Dr. Buffaloe came to South Dakota in April, 1901, and finally became impressed with the attractions of Alexandria and decided to establish himself here. He has no reason to regret his choice, for he has met a most favorable reception, both professionally and socially, and has built up a gratifying practice.

15. i. Ethel-Hicks-Buffaloe Weldon, daughter of Dr.-Alonzo-j Buffaloe and Julia-Francis-Hicks Hicks was born on 22 Nov 1889. She died on 25 Apr 1975 (Y). She married Nathaniel-Warren Weldon. He was born in 1895. He died in 1972 (Y).

58. Nathaniel Brickell. He died (Y). He married Julia-Anne-Bartlett Bartlett.

Notes for William-Jackson Hicks:

Bio notes:  NOTED ARCHITECT & BUILDER ****

William Jackson Hicks was born 1827 in Spotsylvania County, Virginia, one of 8 known children (only 2 surviving) born to farmers Martin Hicks & Nancy Pendleton.

He was the paternal grandson of Brig. General Peter & Sally Hicks of Spotsylvania, whose father,

Peter Hicks Sr., had come to Virginia from England ca. 1750 and was one of the early settlers of Spotsylvania county. He was the maternal grandson of John Pendleton & Sarah Alsop of Spotsylvania County, VA.

William was just 3 years old when his mother died in 1830 and since his father, by ill luck and other means, had lost his fortune, he helped manage the family farm from an early age. As a youth, he was recalled as being frail, weak and delicate, but he seemed to have some inner drive and was determined to develop his body and his life, and in later years he was described as having developed into a stately figure of a man -- tall, large-framed and well proportioned.

In 1849, his father died, and the 22-year old, realizing his future was not in farming, went to work as a quarryman and stonecutter in Louisa County, VA. Always attracted to mechanical work, Hicks then turned to the carpenter's and millwright's trades. Although he had only a few years of formal education, he pursued a rigorous course of self-education in the mechanical arts and engineering.

In 1852 Hicks was hired by Smith, Colby, and Company of New York to install machinery in the McCulloch Gold Mill near Greensboro, North Carolina. After two years in the Greensboro area he moved to Raleigh where, according to his contemporary, Samuel Ashe, Hicks was involved in constructing and equipping the Neuse Manufacturing Company's paper mill, the large stone factory still standing at Falls of the Neuse. Hicks liked Raleigh and evidently made connections with substantial local citizens.

A | On March 4, 1858 the 31-year old married 21-year old Julia Louise Harrison, only daughter of merchant John R. Harrison. The couple settled in Raleigh and William opened a contracting business.

William and Julia would become parents to 8 known children (4 boys/4 girls), 2 of whom died in infancy: John Martin Wilton Hicks (1859-1944), James Hicks (1860-1860), Mary L. Hicks (1861-1890), William Bowes Hicks (1864-1923), Julia F. Hicks (1867-1904), Charles Howard Hicks (1869-1869), Elizabeth "Lizzie" W. Hicks (1872-1944), Bertha M. Hicks (1873-1962) and Frances "Fanny" Hicks (1875-1900).

During the Civil War, Hicks turned his paper mill on the Neuse into a powder mill, which rendered the Confederacy invaluable services in furnishing the grey veterans with ammunition. It was one of the chief sources from which the Confederacy was supplied with gunpowder, and although he was not a fighter in the struggle, his services were even more important than that of many generals in the army.

After the war, he entered the rosin business, then returned to contracting in association with Thomas H. Briggs, Sr. and James Dodd, leading Raleigh builders who had been active before the war. The firm constructed many buildings in the postwar boom.

In 1869, Hicks took on a newly established position as superintendent of construction and assistant architect of the Central Prison (State Penitentiary) in Raleigh, which had been authorized by the state legislature in 1868. The facility, completed in 1884, was a huge, brick edifice designed in castellated style by Ohio architect Levi T. Scofield. For a time the prisoners lived in log huts on the grounds of the prison, making bricks and laying the walls for their new quarters, which were nearing readiness for occupancy in 1882. Hicks managed the complex project effectively, and as the work proceeded he earned the approbation of various political leaders. In 1872, even after a change of political leadership, he was retained as "warden and architect" of the penitentiary and became de facto state architect. He was also accorded the title "Colonel."

Under Hicks's administration, the convict brick-making operation at the prison proved such an economic boon that several major state buildings of the 1880s were constructed with "penitentiary brick." Among these were the Executive Mansion, the Supreme Court Building, and Holladay Hall (main building of present North Carolina State University, see Charles L. Carson), all in Raleigh, and Memorial Hall (1883-1885, see Samuel Sloan) in Chapel Hill. All were designed by noted architects of the day including Samuel Sloan, A. G. Bauer, and Charles L. Carson.

In 1883, Philadelphia architect Samuel Sloan had provided designs for the elaborate Queen Anne style Executive Mansion in Raleigh, but Sloan died in 1884, leaving the project in the hands of his young assistant A. G. Bauer. In order to save money, the state, as suggested by Governor Thomas Jarvis, contracted with Hicks as "Architect and Warden" of the prison. Hicks undertook to complete the building using prison labor and prison-made materials. Work on the prison and the mansion proceeded simultaneously. Hicks not only supplied convict bricks and labor but also, according to an 1887 account from Governor Thomas Jarvis, shaped the design. As early as 1883, Hicks and others had substantially amended Sloan's original design for reasons of economy, which "much provoked" architect Sloan. Other alterations followed. Hicks substituted "penitentiary machine made pressed brick" trimmed in sandstone for Sloan's extensive use of sandstone, and he altered the design toward symmetry and simplicity. Despite these economies, cost overruns and budget problems slowed the project. It was finally completed in 1891.

In the meantime, Hicks also supplied drawings to complete another Sloan project, the quickly built, impermanent complex for the 1884 State Exposition at the state fairgrounds. The following year, Hicks and Bauer shared the planning of the Supreme Court Building in a practical and subdued rendition of the Second Empire style.

In addition, Hicks supplied penitentiary brick to some private customers including the Duke family's tobacco warehouses in Durham. In October 1897, Hicks wrote a detailed letter to tobacconist Benjamin N. Duke estimating the quantity of brick needed for the Walker Tobacco Warehouse, the first of a series of large, brick warehouses in Durham and something of a prototype. Hicks may have taken a role in the design as well.

A }

After severing his connection with the State he again entered private business in Raleigh in 1894 investing in the newly formed business of Separk, Hicks, and Company, a manufacturing concern, and in 1896 he was president of the North Carolina Building and Supply Company, which grew rapidly with a plant in Raleigh and a branch lumber mill at Troy by 1899. Among his associates in the firm who gained prominence were W. J. Ellington and C. P. Snuggs.

During this period Hicks engaged in several projects, including work on the new campus of Trinity College (later Duke University), which moved to Durham from Randolph County. There, the large Main Building designed by architect Samuel Linton Leary was under construction by contractor C. H. Norton when the central tower collapsed. Hicks was called in to evaluate the collapse and was given the contract to rebuild and complete the project. A sketch of his life, published in 1898 by Trinity College, stated that "Colonel Hicks. . . superintended the construction of every brick building of Trinity College and Trinity Park School. . . . For this reason his venerated portrait now graces the wall of the college library."

In 1898, the 71-year old retired from building and was elected superintendent of the Oxford Orphan Asylum in Granville Co, NC. Here his services met marked success. The orphanage was a well-intended organization founded by the Masons in 1872. By the time Hicks came to the home, it was tottering under the burden of debt, and almost prostrated for lack of means by which it could be steered. Buildings were insufficient to supply the demands of the children, and at times the staff did not know from one day to the next where food would come from to feed children. From this state of reeling uncertainty, William Hicks steered the institution clear of debt and stirred up the people of North Carolina concerning their duty for the cause, resulting in the creation of an annual income for the home's support. During his tenure at Oxford, the Hicks lived on the orphanage grounds. Hicks offered his resignation on September 1, 1909 but remained at Oxford until his death, when R. L. Brown took over, and the home remains in operation today (2009) and is now known as the Masonic Home for Children.

William J. Hicks died on January 14, 1911, just one month shy of his 84th birthday. The well-loved and respected octogenarian was widely eulogized for his excellent character as well as his many accomplishments. One contemporary noted, "He epitomized the practical, ambitious, and adaptable men who made their way in the unsettled times after the war." His funeral drew "an immense throng" to Raleigh's Oakwood Cemetery. His beloved wife of 53 years survived him a little more than year, passing in 1912 at age 75.

As for his children, son John M. W. Hicks never married and became treasurer of the American Tobacco Company and lived in New York City for many years. His only other surviving son, William Bowes Hicks, married three times and was father to 6 children, and was a lumber dealer for many years in Montgomery Co, NC. Daughter Mary married Raleigh grocer, Job Phalerus Wyatt, and was mother to 4 known children. Three of his other daughters married, but their husbands are unknown to this researcher. Julia married and divorced unknown Buffaloe, and was mother to a daughter, Ethel; Elizabeth married unknown Johnson; and Bertha married unknown Turner. Youngest daughter, Fanny, died unmarried in 1900 at age 24.

Julia-Louisa-Harrison Harrison and William-Jackson Hicks had the following children:

- 31. i. Julia-Francis-Hicks Hicks, daughter of William-Jackson Hicks and Julia-Louisa-Harrison Harrison was born in 1867. She died in 1904 (Y). She married Dr.-Alonzo-j Buffaloe. He was born in Raleigh. He died in 1939 in South Dakota (Y).
- ii. John-Martin-Wilton Hicks, son of William-Jackson Hicks and Julia-Louisa-Harrison Harrison was born on 03 Mar 1859. He died on 17 Mar 1944 (Y).

John R. Harrison was a wagon & buggy maker in Raleigh in the 1840's-1860's. Born in North Carolina in 1808, to John & Delia Harrison, he was in his 40's when he entered into a business partnership with Wiley W. Johnson in 1848 opening a shop at the corner of Morgan & McDowell Streets in Raleigh. The partnership later dissolved when Harrison left to go into the business of manufacturing railroad cars for the North Carolina Railroad opening business on West Street in Raleigh.

John R. Harrison married Mary Lucas of North Carolina about 1834 and were parents to two known children: (CSA) Lt. John W. Harrison (1835-1883) and Julia Louisa Harrison (1837-1912) who married architect, William Jackson Hicks.

Notes for Dr.-Alonzo-j Buffaloe:

Bio notes: ALONZO J. BUFFALOE, M. D., established in the successful practice of his profession in the attractive little city of Alexandria, Hanson county, is a native of the fine old state of North Carolina, having been born in Raleigh, Wake county, and being the son of B. B. and Cornelia Buffaloe, representatives of old and honored southern families. The father is devoting his life to agriculture and is a man of prominence and influence in his community. Dr. Buffaloe was accorded excellent educational advantages in his youthful days, having secured his preliminary discipline in the common schools of his native state and having entered Wake Forest College, where he received his literary training. In the meanwhile he had determined to prepare himself for the noble profession to which he is now giving his attention, and was matriculated in that celebrated technical institution of the national metropolis, Bellevue Hospital Medical College, in New York city, being there graduated in 1886 and receiving his coveted degree of Doctor of Medicine. After his graduation, wishing to be more thoroughly equipped for the arduous duties of his chosen profession, he took special courses in chemistry, physical diagnosis, surgery and army and navy dressings in Bellevue and Mount Sinai Hospitals. He then located in the city of Raleigh, North Carolina, determined to win his professional spurs in his native state, and there he initiated the active practice of medicine and surgery, being for some time connected with the city hospital, where he gained still further clinical experience of the most valuable order. He continued to be there engaged in practice until 1901. In 1895 he availed himself for a while of the advantages of the post-graduate course at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Maryland. Dr. Buffaloe came to South Dakota in April, 1901, and finally became impressed with the attractions of Alexandria and decided to establish himself here. He has no reason to regret his choice, for he has met a most favorable reception, both professionally and socially, and has built up a gratifying practice.
